Russian Troops Drive On From Recaptured Bastion of Rzhev

LONDON, March 4.—(CP)—The Russians announced tonight the capture of Olenino, 35 miles west of Rzhev on the Velikie Luki railroad, and declared the whole trunk line on the vital central front to Velikie Luki is in Soviet hands.

MOSCOW, March 4.—The Red army crashed through crumbling German defences southwest of recaptured Rzhev today, seized 11 villages and plunged on toward the big German stronghold of Smolensk.

The Germans threw infantry and tanks into counter-attacks in a futile effort to stem the Soviet drive, but all were repulsed, the Soviet midday communique said.

The fall of Rzhev, 130 miles west northwest of Moscow, yesterday unhinged the whole German salient west of the Russian capital. Captured by the Germans in October, 1941, the Rzhev area had served as a springboard for the abortive German march on Moscow that winter but held under the suseguent Soviet counter-offensive

DRIVE FOR SMOLENSK

"The direction of the new Soviet advance indicated that the Red Army now was striking directly at Smolensk, 140 miles southwest of Rzhev, and thus outflanking Vyazma, 70 miles south of Rzhev and southwestern anchor of the Axis salient before Moscow.

Smolensk, once Adolf Hitler's headquarters, is the principal concentration point for Axis troops on the central fronts and the site of some of the principal German airdromes.

A Soviet drive across the Smolensk-Moscow railroad in this direction would isolate not only

No Change Made

Conservatives Continue Support of Independent Party in This Province

By WILLIAM MURPHY
Edmonton Bulletin Staff Reporter

CALGARY, March 3.—No change was made by delegates to the Alberta Progressive Conservative Association convention in the policy of support of the Independent party in the province and no action was taken to re-enter the provincial political field as a separate party.

While this matter was not discussed on the convention floor it was taken up by the resolutions committee and there decided that "the interest of the province of Alberta would be best served by the maintenance of the stand taken by the party four years ago when it was decided to support the Independent movement."

When resolutions were being discussed on the convention floor delegates known to favor the reentry of the party into the provincial field did not bring forward any resolution and one such delegate commented that the "vast majority of the delegates favored the continuance of support for the Independent movement."

Resolutions passed by the convention included a pledge of unswerving loyalty to His Majesty King George Sixth, and the pledge of unqualified support and loyalty to Hon. John Bracken, recently elected national Progressive Conservative leader.

SILENT TRIBUTE

In a two-minute silence delegates paid tribute to the memory of the late D. M. Duggan, M.L.A., former provincial leader and R. D. Tighe, K.C., of Edmonton, a vice-president of the association, both of whom died last eyar. The resolution expressed the deep sorrow of the delegates stating that "the work

Premier Conant Accepts Resignation of Hepburn

TORONTO, March 4.—(CP)—Premier Gordon Conant of Ontario last night announced acceptance of the resignation of provincial treasurer Mitchell Hepburn and in a letter to Mr. Hepburn indicated this action stemmed from disagreement with Mr. Hepburn's opposition to the Dominion government.

The premier, who succeeded Mr. Hepburn in that office last Oct. 21, said Hon. A. St. Clair Gordon, chairman of the Liquor Control board, would be the new provincial treasurer and remain also as liquor board head.

Mr. Conant, appointed attorney-general when Mr. Hepburn formed his second administration in 1937 told his former chief in the letter of acceptance that when Mr. Hepburn resigned the premiership he also tendered his resignation as treasurer but acceded to Mr. Conant's request to continue. The premier said Mr. Hepburn stated then "And since stated that you would be willing to relinquish the portfolio if at any time it appear-

Instalment XVI.

At the time of the Coral Sea battle, the Lexington, with Captain Frederick C. Sherman as skipper, was part of a two-carrier striking force commanded by Vice-Admiral Frank J. Fletcher. On the morning of May 8, 1942, while planes from the U.S. force were attacking the carriers in a similar Japanese force, enemy planes assaulted the U.S. fleet. The Lexington, though hit by five torpedoes and two bombs, apparently weathered the attack without serious damage but, about an hour later, a violent internal explosion, believed to have been caused by gas fumes seeping from damaged tanks, started a fire that soon spread through the lower decks. All that afternoon, officers and crew heroically fought the fire, but sucessive explosions made it a losing battle. Finally, when Commander Mort Seligman, executive officer, reported that there was danger of the ship's explosives detonating, the abandon ship order was given. What happened after that is told in this final instalment.—EDITOR.

The Lexington Goes to Glory

Execution of the abandon ship order was Commander Seligman's duty. He at once got a score of different details of men busy. Some produced heavy lines that were secured to the flight deck net railing and streamed down into the water.

Others got out huge doughnut rafts. These had a fat balsam-wood pad—about 8 feet in diameter and 10 long. Inside was a wooden lattice floor attached by lines. When filled with men the flooring sank several feet beneath the surface, leaving the men standing in water up to their waists.

Meanwhile, Admiral Fletcher on Carrier II, his flagship, had been notified of the decision to abandon the Lex. Three cruisers and four destroyers were directed to stand in close and prepare to aid in taking the crew off.

The rest of the fleet continued on out toward the horizon. Carrier II had to keep moving to keep her patrols in the air. Some of our own pilots were flying these patrols, for Capt. Sherman, hours earlier, had ordered that as many of his aircraft as could be accommodated aboard Carrier II be flown to its deck. In this way about 25 per cent of the Lexington's squadrons were saved.

Almost as soon as the ropes had been rigged over the 50 foot high sides, men began dropping into the sea, from where they climbed onto the rafts. It was about 3.15 o'clock. One of the destroyers came alongside to starboard, and took between 400 and 500 men aboard who climbed down the ropes to her deck.

Most of the men lowered themselves to water level on the port side aft. The ship listed away from them and left a stream of swimmers and loaded rafts strung out for nearly 1,000 yards. Vessels formed up along this line of men and pulled them aboard.

TIME OUT FOR ICE CREAM

In all, the abandonment of the ship was spread out over more than two hours. There was calmness and order. Men would go to the

On Varied Scale

Liquor Prices Are Increased Starting Today

J. A. King, chairman of the Alberta Liquor Control Board, Thursday announced increases in liquor prices, effective immediately to bring prices in line with the new $4 per gallon tax on spirits announced in the Dominion budget.

The price increases were 25 cents on all 12 and 13-ounce bottles, 50 cents on all 25 and 26 ounce bottles and 75 cents on all 40 ounce bottles. These raises apply to rye and gin only, while Scotch is raised 30, 60 and 90 cents a bottle, according to the size of the bottle. Under new regulations no special permits are granted for banquets. Prices of beer and wines remain unchanged.

Mr. King said he did not know if the government liquor stores had any 40-ounce bottles of liquor left, but they were selling off those that they had in stock.

Under recently announced liquor purchasing restrictions, Albertans are limited to 26 ounces of liquor and two bottles of wine, any size, per month, and one dozen pints of beer per week.

Mr. King announced previously that all liquors still in stock in 40-ounce bottles would be sold until the stocks are gone, after which time 40-ounce bottles would be stocked.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa, March 4.—British and American patrols have driven to within three miles of the Faid pass, starting point of the Axis Tunisian drive in mid-February, and the Allies now are poised for push against the enemy in the Sfax-Gabes bottleneck.

At the same time, today's headquarters communique revealed that Marshal Erwin Rommel's forces are being reinforced along the Mareth-line in southern Tunisia for the grand-scale assault by the British Eighth army, which awaits only the moment when Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery feels that he is ready to begin a sure-fire campaign.

CONTACT ENEMY

Allied patrols contacted the retreating German and Italian troops about fifteen miles south of the Faid pass. Other patrols fanning out in the barren wasteland, interspersed with occasional hills, south of Fernana, have encountered the Hamada at Moulares, some 30 miles west of Gafsa.

Gafsa remains the Axis anchor post in the middle Tunisian sector.

Considerable hard fighting continued yesterday in the northern sector where the Germans have been trying without much success to extend their bridgehead westward in the Bizerte-Tunis area, the communique reported.

The communique said that the enemy gained some ground in the Sed Jenane area "at the expense of very heavy casualties."

Two more warplanes on the northern front were repulsed while Allied troops counter - attacked north of the Beja-Mateur road in the Hunt's Pass sector.

Allied Bombers Raid Jap Bases

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Allied bombers, apparently backing up attacks on the last remaining units of a Japanese convoy, struck at five enemy bases in the Solomons on Wednesday (Island time) without the loss of any aircraft, the U.S. Navy announced today.

Liberator heavy bombers attacked Kahili on the southeast coast of Bougainville, Buin and Buka on the same general area, and Vila on Kolombangara. Fighter escorted dauntless dive bombers made the 82nd American air attack on Munda, New Georgia Island, and started a fire.

All of the places attacked are enemy air bases, and the bombing, evidently were designed to prevent their use in support of the big Japanese convoy while Allied fliers were blasting the enemy fleet.

Messina, Sicily, Raided by Heavy American Planes

CAIRO, March 4.—(CP)—United States heavy bombers attacked Messina, Sicily, important supply port across the Strait of Messina from Italy, a communique of the Middle East command said today. All aircraft returned safely.

German bombers raided Tripoli Tuesday night and one of the attacking planes was damaged by Allied fighters, it was announced.

Crazy Antics Over Mediterranean

Millet Air Ace Forced to Bail Out of Disabled Fighter Plane

VALETTA, Malta, March 4—(CP)—Strange things have happened in the air over this Mediterranean island, but nothing stranger has been seen than the crazy antics of a disabled long-range fighter flown by a young Canadian, Flt. Lt. D. W. Schmidt, D.F.C. and Bar, of Millet, Alta.

Schmidt lost his controls during an attack off the Tunisian coast against a schooner escorted by a dozen U-boats. The flak knocked out everything but his engines and ailerons and he found himself in charge of an aircraft, travelling at more than 290 miles an hour, which suddenly put up its nose in an almost vertical climb.

"We've had it, Jock," Schmidt told his Scottish observer as he tried vainly to bring the machine out of its climb. It was only a question of time when it would stall. The observer refused the pilot's suggestion to jump and this gave Schmidt an idea.

FALLS 8,000 FEET

"Come forward," he told Jock, "and lean over my shoulders." The additional weight in the nose did the trick and the aircraft ceased its climb. But when the observer returned to his normal position, up went the nose of the aircraft again.

FLT.-LT. SCHMIDT

Steering with his engines and using his observer as ballast, Schmidt managed to make some sort of a course for base. Twice he lost control, falling about 8,000 feet before being able to pull out, with the help of the observer's weight aft.

Before long Schmidt realized the aircraft was again getting completely out of hand, and this time he ordered the observer to jump. The Scot had to bail out without his dinghy. Had he gone to get it the trim of the aircraft would have been upset further.

WOULDN'T STAY LEVEL

Schmidt still couldn't keep the aircraft level and it began to climb again, so he decided to experiment. He found that by cutting the engines he would arrest his climb. Then, when this manoeuvre produced an ugly dive he had only to open up the engines and the aircraft would start to climb again.

By means of jerks and lurches he got the machine back to Malta, but over the island he was compelled to jump himself. He was caught in the shrouds of his parachute but managed to free himself. On the way down he pulled out the peaked cap he always carries and clapped it on his head. "It can't be said that the flight commander in our squadron hit the deck improperly dressed," he related afterwards.

Canadian, R.A.F. Bombers Heavily Batter Hamburg

LONDON, March 4.—The Royal Air Force and the Royal Canadian Air Force carried their record-breaking pre-invasion aerial offensive into its second week last night with a shattering raid on Hamburg, Germany's second city, while weak German forces struck back with two raids on London.

The R.C.A.F. communique announcing that Canadian bomber crews took part in the Hamburg raid disclosed that one R.C.A.F. bomber was lost. Altogether 10 British and Canadian bombers were lost in the night's operations —an indication that at least 700 participated in the attacks.

Objectives in Western Germany also were bombed by the R.A.F and the R.C.A.F. the air ministry said.

Two and perhaps four-ton block-buster demolition bombs headed new destruction on Hamburg one of Germany's most-bombed cities, in what was described officially as the "heavy attack." Torrents of incendiary bombs also were raised on the city.

The raid was another blow in the Allied offensive to smash cities contributing to Germany's submarine warfare. Hamburg not only is Germany's biggest port, but its shipyards and factories constitute an important cog in the U-boat campaign.

More submarines are built along the nine miles of wharves at Hamburg than at any other German port. Among the principal shipyards are those of the Blohm and Voss company.

It was the 96th raid of the war

Prof. Linkomies is second vice-speaker of parliament and vice-president of Helsinki University.

The Finnish radio said that the Social Democratic Party already had decided not to oppose Linkomies' candidacy and the Agrarian Party was reported to have swung into line.

LONDON, March 4.—The admiralty announced today that British submarines operating in the Mediterranean have destroyed seven Axis supply ships and damaged nine more vessels.

In addition to the new blows against the Axis supply lines to Tunisia, a submarine of the Mediterranean fleet surfaced in the Gulf of Genoa near the Italian coast, opened fire on a shipbuilding yard, and scored several hits with high explosive shells on two vessels on the stocks.

Another, working close inshore, shelled an Italian train on a bridge, the admiralty communique said, without reporting on the results.

SHIP FORCED ASHORE

The destroyed Axis vessels were a large supply ship, one of medium size, two small ships, a minesweeper and two tugs.

Among the nine damaged vessels were - large tanker and a large supply ship.

A submarine operating off the Italian Riviera scored two torpedo hits on a large supply ship which later ran ashore and was listed as a total loss.

In the same area a big tanker, escorted by an armed yacht, was intercepted and torpedoed, but "counter measures by the enemy made it impossible to observe the full result of this attack." The same submarine sank two tugs by gunfire

CHUNGKING, March 4.—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's Chinese army in Yunnan has driven the Japanese back at two points along the Salween river front, a Chinese communique announced today.

The Japanese column which was advancing east of Menting ran into a stiff Chinese counter-attack and fled toward Nanpangbo, northwest of Mengting. Fighting was still in progress, the announcement said.

Enemy troops in the region of Tatangtse, south of Lushui, also were forced to retreat to the south west after sustaining heavy losses from a fierce Chinese attack, according to the communique.

15,000 Men Victims With Lost Vessels

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia, March 4.—Japan's time-table for the war in the South Pacific was thrown far off schedule today by the crushing loss of 22 ships and 15,000 men—first time in this area that every vessel in a convoy was left sunk or sinking after a battle.

Allied bombers, victors in one of the great air-sea battles of the war, were mopping up today in the stretches of the Pacific where crippled Japanese ships were attempting to escape the wrath of Allied airmen.

Ten Japanese warships—cruisers and destroyers—and 12 transports carrying 15,000 men, were blasted in a two-day battle in which the enemy defied the striking power of land-based planes in an attempt to reinforce his base at Lae, on the Huon Gulf in northeastern New Guinea. Not a single ship got through.

The smashing defeat upset whatever plans the Japanese may have to attempt to stem the tide of Allied victories which have been cutting into enemy strength since the United States Marines stormed the Solomons.

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, March 4.—American Flying Fortresses, carrying 1,000-pound bombs, swept out from the clouds today to deliver what was believed to be a serious blow against Adolf Hitler's rail and water communication systems.

Five American bombers were missing in the double thrust at the widely separated German targets, a United States Army Air Force communique said.

One target was the railroad yards at Hamm, Germany's most important trans-shipment point for the great industrial Rhur Valley.

The other was Rotterdam in occupied Holland, an important point in the German supply system because it is a haven for coastal shipping.

Sustained Air Blows on Nazis Set New Record

By LOUIS V. HUNTER

LONDON, March 4.—(CP)—The R.A.F. and the R.C.A.F. in their "round-the-clock offensive struck at the Germans in Germany or occupied territory every day in February and on 26 of the month's 28 nights to establish a record for consistency, it was disclosed officially last night.

The air forces struck every day and every night for the first fortnight and every day and 12 nights during the last two weeks. Authoritative sources said at least 10,000 tons of bombs were dumped on the ermans during the month, 1½ times the tonnage of the previous best month.

BLAST SUB BASES

The majority of the night sorties were directed against his U-boat bases of Wilhelmshaven, Bremen, Lorient and St. Nazaire. There also were heavy attacks on Nuremburg and Cologne where U-boat parts are made.

The German air effort over Britain slackened sharply during the month and there were fewer than 20 sorties. It was estimated officially that 20 per cent of the raiders were destroyed.

Reviewing bomber command raids, a monthly summary said that in addition to the devastation caused by the Wurtzenside explosion at Wilhelmshaven, sheds and stores in the naval base, dockyards and in the commercial harbor had been hit and seven acres of the business area on the northwest side of the railway station suffered varying degrees of damage.

All workshops in the western half of the Deutsche Werke, mothermade engine plant for 30 and 32-ft. submarines and other light naval craft, were severely damaged.

BERLIN WORKS HIT

Further information on the results of two January raids on Berlin shows the Borsig Eheinmetal Works in the Marienfeld received several hits. At the Tempelhof aerodrome a hangar was burned out. The Opel repair depot and the freight station were damaged.

In western Berlin damage to a power station caused failure for some hours. In parts of south Berlin tramways were out of order for three days, and at Neukolln six acres of industrial buildings were destroyed by fire.

Statistics issued during the month totalled 156 over northern Europe as against 54 for the Axis. Total Allied losses in all war theatres were 236 aircraft compared with 340 for the Axis.

Freeze Allocation Of Air Routes

OTTAWA, March 4.—(CP)—Allocation of trans-border commercial air routes between Canadian and United States air lines is "frozen" for the duration of the war under an exchange of notes between the two governments tabled in the house of commons today by Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

The exchange follows an arrangement approved by an exchange of notes in November and December of 1940 which was to have continued until Dec. 31, 1942.

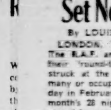

Prior to that date the aeronautical authorities were to have held a conference to review the situation and recommend any changes but because of the war situation the conference could not be held and the existing arrangement is continued.

Under the existing allocation of air routes Canada has the right to operate international services between Toronto and New York and between Montreal and points in Canada. The United States has approved for entry to Canada are from Bangor, Me., to Edmonton, B.C., Buffalo to Toronto, any points in the United States to Windsor, Ont., and Great Falls, Mont., to Lethbridge, Alta.

Lost in Solomons Battle

The U.S. Navy has announced the loss of the heavy cruiser Chicago in the Solomons area during the abortive Japanese attempts to evacuate men from Guadalcanal and to interfere with American reinforcements, also cost a U.S. destroyer, 22 American planes and three U.S. motor torpedo boats.

plans," said a communique issued at Allied headquarters. "We can begin for the time being at least, it completely dislocated."

The Japanese suffered heavily in the air. Fifty-five of their planes were bagged, 38 of which are known to have been destroyed and 17 damaged. Against that figure, the Allies lost 20, 15 of them bomber and three fighters although seven planes which got back to their bases were damaged.

VICTORY FOR AIR POWER

In the matter of enemy ships destroyed, the battle, which occurred Tuesday and Wednesday in the Bismarck Sea between New Britain and New Guinea Islands, was the second of those fought in the Pacific so far. But it was the first battle in which airplanes alone attacked enemy surface vessels attempting a retreatory incursion and seemed to demonstrate that a powerful aerial force could wreck a convoy not heavily protected by planes.

The Allied victory in the battle off Guadalcanal Nov. 13-15 in which 28 Japanese vessels were destroyed, was the first major Allied outrank the new one in damage inflicted upon the enemy. The battle of the Coral Sea and the Midway resulted in fewer ships being destroyed, though they were, strategically, of the utmost importance.

The convoy was found for the Huon Gulf, in New Guinea and the first phase of the battle was fought in the gulf.

The victory was of "a major character for the enemy," an army spokesman said.

STARTED ON TUESDAY

The tonnage of the destroyed ships totalled approximately 90,000 tons. Seventeen Japanese planes, in addition to the 38 destroyed, were damaged.

The battle started Tuesday morning, when Allied bombers blasted an 8,000-ton and a 10,000-ton vessel of the 14-ship convoy. By Wednesday morning it had entered Huon Gulf and was bombed night after night. All day Allied fighters steadily whittled down the protective Japanese fighters while the bombers flew in at low level to wreck the transports and warships.

Many light bombers came in over the ships at mast-height to fire a 6,000-tonner and two other medium cargo ships.

When the day was over, they had scored 12 direct hits on six ships. Three Japanese fighter planes had been shot down. But meanwhile, Mitchell Mediums were at work, accounting for 10 ships. A destroyer rolled over and sank, a 3,000-ton transport sank two min utes after being directly hit. Other medium cargo ships and two other destroyers were burning and left smoking.

When the A-20's turned back to their base from columns of smoke towered over the oil slicked waters, and could be seen for 40 miles.

Lightning was engaged between 20 and 25 Japanese fighters of all types while this work progressed and shot down 10 as well as damaging three.

WAVES OF FORTRESSES

Then came three waves of Flying Fortresses. The first scored a hit and near miss on a cargo ship and destroyed seven out of 15 or 18 Japanese fighters. The second scored a hit and near miss on a 4,000 ton freighter which exploded and sank and bagged one Japanese fighter out of a force of eight or nine. Two other enemy planes were damaged.

The third hit a medium cargo ship and shot down five out of 12 Japanese interceptors.

Detailed reports covered only the action through Wednesday night's mission, the story of the rest of the attacks has yet to be compiled.

"One of the greatest factors contributing to our success was the fact that the Japanese convoy was anticipated and its intentions diagnosed," the army spokesman said. "Our air force had been conditioned and prepared for such an attack during recent lulls.

ed desirable that you should do so."

DISCUSS SITUATION

"On Sunday, Feb. 28, we discussed the present situation in a frank and friendly manner and I expressed my very great concern for the financial position and autonomy of the province resulting from the Ottawa agreements imposed by the Dominion government," Mr. Conant said in his letter to acceptance.

"I also stated my opinion that the situation is not likely to be improved by your attitude towards and statements concerning the Dominion government from time to time. It was my understanding during our discussion on Sunday, confirmed by our telephone conversation last evening, that you were quite agreeable to your position as treasurer, dated and handed to me on Oct. 21, being made effective at any time it is, therefore my intention, in accordance with our understanding, to advise that your resignation as treasurer of the province of Ontario be accepted."

Mr. Conant said that although Mr. Hepburn's attitude towards and statements concerning the Dominion government have not been, in my opinion, in the best interest of the province and the dominion," in all other respects under Mr. Hepburn's "most capable leadership" Ontario made splendid contributions to Canada's war effort.

WAR BIG FACTOR

"Although some actions of the Dominion government are difficult to understand and it is not always possible to reconcile their actions and statements at different times, we must always bear in mind that the Dominion government is responsible for Canada's war effort, that the burden on the Dominion government is of a magnitude that conditions and situations change from time to time," the premier said.

Mr. Conant said successful prosecution of the war is the first consideration and efforts of all governments must be directed to that end. All governments must sacrifice jurisdiction and powers or whatever may be necessary for attainment of that goal just as thousands of individual citizens are sacrificing, he said and added: "This necessity for sacrifice all around should, in my view, extend to inter-governmental relationships."

The Premier said no person appreciated more than he did Mr. Hepburn's loyalty, energy for all our Canadian war effort and conviction that nothing should be spared in Canada's contribution to the United Nations' war effort.

RELEASES LETTER

The 46-year-old Mr. Hepburn released a copy of a letter he sent Mr. Conant containing criticism of the federal government and the assertion that the Ottawa administration machine has long endeavored to set up a ruling government in Ontario and is now engaged temporarily by employing the Hitler policy of breaking an agreement and by rendering abuse of power." He did not elaborate.

His resignation lacked the dramatics attending his quitting the premiership last Oct. 21 at that time he announced he would retain the portfolio of provincial treasurer "for a short time, after which I shall retire from public life."

It remains to be seen, however, whether the stormy petrel of Ontario politics will find it useful to return to his 1,000-acre onion farm in Elgin County, where he was elected on 1934 and down five out of 18 Japanese interceptors.

Detailed reports covered only the action through Wednesday night's mission, the story of the rest of the attacks has yet to be compiled.

Reds Driving Ahead After Taking Rzhev

Vyazma, chief rail junction 28 miles northeast of Vyazma and only 130 miles west of Moscow.

With the capture of Rzhev, a dispatch to the government newspaper Izvestia said, the Russians now had cleared a 200-mile stretch of the Moscow-Riga railroad stretching from the Soviet capital to a point west of Velikie Luki, 80 miles east of the Latvian border.

The Russians were reported rushing repairs to roadbeds and bridges in the hope of restoring it to service in the immediate future.

ADVANCE IN SOUTH

To the south, other Russian armies were driving westward from recaptured Kursk, important railroad junction 27 miles west of Kursk. The mid-day communique reported the capture of 40 settlements in this area and said that 300 German officers and their were killed in a futile counter-attack.

Other Soviet successes were reported west of Rostov, where the Russian offensive carried through several more fortified positions fronting Taganrog, and in the northwest Caucasus, where the Red army narrowed the enemy pocket on the Taman peninsula.

Axis counter-attacks were beaten off northwest of Kharkov and southwest of Voroshilovgrad, the mid-day communique said.

On the Leningrad-western front, field dispatches said, Marshal Semyon Timoshenko occupied several more villages in his drive toward Staraya Russa, railway junction.

BLOW TO NAZI ARMY

(A Stockholm dispatch published in London said unofficial reports from Berlin that the Germans have begun the evacuation of Orel, anchor point at the junction of the central and southern fronts.)

The fall of Rzhev, announced in a special communique last night, was considered third only to the loss of Kharkov and Rostov as a blow to the German army. A German document seized by the Russians last winter quoted an order of the day from Hitler as saying that Rzhev was "the key to Berlin" and demanding that it be held at all costs.

Upwards of 2,000 German dead were counted on the Rzhev sector approaches to Rzhev and within the city itself after fierce battles that ended last Saturday, the Soviet high command said.

Nazis Say War Will End When "Mercy" Asked

NEW YORK, March 4.—AP—Dr. Paul Schmidt, head of the press and information department of the German foreign office, was quoted by the Berlin radio yesterday as declaring that the Germans and Italians are convinced that war will cease only when "we have slain the Bolshevists and the British have pegged out their mercy."

Schmidt was giving what was described as the first report by a responsible man who took part in the German-Italian discussions during Foreign Minister Ribbentrop's five-day visit to Rome which ended Sunday.

He said that at Casablanca President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill put up as their aim "the unconditional surrender of the enemy." While "in the German-Italian discussions we replied by stating that our aim was absolute destruction of the enemy."

He referred to reports reaching Berlin that Ribbentrop had met Archbishop Francis J. Spellman of New York while in Rome but denied them as ridiculous.

New York Store Wagers $5,000 Against Ration

NEW YORK, March 4.—AP—A New York department store wagered $5,000 yesterday that clothes will not be rationed in the United States this year. "Our best information from Washington as well as our own sources of information brings us definitely to this conclusion," read an advertisement of Lord and Taylor. "If we lose (and most people we don't think we will) we will divide the above sum between Red Cross, United Service Organizations, Greater New York Fund."

Knox Projects American Navy 2,500,000 Strong

WASHINGTON, March 4.—AP—Secretary Frank Knox, projecting a navy of 2,500,000 strong by July, 1944, and big enough to control the world's seaways, warned the United States senate yesterday that only an out of every 10 navy men may be killed or wounded.

Knox's prediction of a 10 per cent casualty rate and his proposals for an all-ocean navy were made public by the house of Representatives sub-committee on naval appropriations in finishing work on a new $4,000,000,000 supplemental naval appropriation measure.

The delegates expressed approval and endorsation of the platform and program of the Progressive Conservative party adopted at the national convention at Winnipeg, and instructed the provincial executive to publicize the platform to the greatest possible extent.

It expressed to deep concern at the failure of the Dominion government to grasp properly the viewpoints of the western farmer in relation to the many problems and in particular the problem of manning his farming operations with adequate labor. It also emphasized the right of the farmer and other primary producers to a fair share of the nations' income.

Delegates expressed their tremendous debt owed by the people of Canada to the men and women in the services urged that no effort necessary be taken to insure that they and their dependents shall not suffer by reason of their sacrifice.

on Hamburg, the last previous attack having been made on Feb. 3.

Last night was the eighth straight night on which Britain's huge four-engined bombers, some of them carrying eight tons of bombs, have blasted targets in Germany, thus equalling the previous record of four consecutive night raids on the Reich set in May 1942 and equalled by the following September.

Twice during the night—the last time two hours before dawn—German planes were hastily swept over London in the face of a terrific anti-aircraft barrage, presumably to make a show of retaliation for the crashing R.A.F. raid on Berlin Monday night.

A joint air ministry-home security announcement communique said only 30 to 40 German planes crossed the British coast in the first raid and fewer than that penetrated the London barrage. An even smaller number of planes participated in the second raid. Altogether three raiders were shot down, the communique said.

"In East Anglia, the home counties and the Midlands these were some casualties, of which a number were fatal, but damage nowhere was extensive," the communique said.

Epic Battle

Destruction of Jap Convoy Shows Value of Land-Based Planes Against Sea Forces

By BRYDON TAVES

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia, March 4.—The destruction of a 22-ship Japanese convoy will go down in the history of warfare as an epic because it proved conclusively the ability of land-based planes, without other assistance, to annihilate naval forces even when the latter has air protection, authoritative sources declared today.

Emphasizing that the entire convoy was wiped out, a headquarters spokesman said this was the first time the complete destruction of a convoy had been achieved in the southwest Pacific area.

These experts believe the battle will go a long way toward settling the war-long controversy of planes versus warships and they pointed out that, although the air force threw in its strongest forces under unfavorable conditions, attacking planes opened the assault against the convoy on Tuesday at an extreme range from their bases while the convoy was only 12 minutes flying time from the New Britain coast, within easy range of Japanese air fields.

DIFFICULT TO SIGHT

Moreover, the convoy was spread out and dispersed over a wide area which made it difficult for surrending waves of bombers, appearing from different directions, to sight it.

The outstanding feature of the action was the fact that not a single ship reached Lae, on the Huon gulf on northeast New Guinea.

One of the great mysteries of the action is the fact that the Japanese did not maintain stronger fighter protection over the ships than they did. One reason for this may have been that they counted too much upon hiding in bad weather.

SIGNIFICANT FEATURE

Official circles in Canberra saw the absence of Allied naval participation in the convoy battle as one of the most significant features, supporting the emphasis on air strength repeatedly expressed by both Gen. Douglas MacArthur and Premier John Curtin.

It was recalled that Curtin had frequently sought extra air strength while his authoritative comment in the southwest Pacific campaign re-

Curtin's comment was linked with MacArthur's communique of Jan. 24 in which he said the outstanding military lesson of the Papuan-New Guinea campaign was the continuous and calculated application of air power employed in closest cooperation with ground troops.

Many shrewd advertisers are doing this. They're finding the advantages of newspaper advertising particularly helpful. In fact, war heightens these advantages . . . Ship Output Now Exceeds U-Boat Toll

By J. F. SANDERSON

WASHINGTON, March 4—(CP)—The United Nations are building merchant ships faster than U-boats are sinking them but the rate of increase is so slow that it is acting as a heavy brake on Allied military operations throughout the world, Sir Arthur Salter, head of the British shipping mission in Washington, said yesterday.

In 1942 the United States produced 8,000,000 deadweight tons of new cargo shipping. Canada and Britain produced about one-third of that total.

GOAL IN 1943

In 1943, however, the United States plans to turn out 19,000,000 tons and, to show that goal is not impossible, December product on exceeded 1,000,000 tons and the rate has been going up steadily since then.

Despite these production figures, Sir Arthur went on, the rate at which the United Nations have turned out shipping has not been equal to their military strength. In other words, the Allies have not produced ships as fast as military demands required and will require in 1943.

"It follows," continued Sir Arthur, "that the impact on the enemy in 1943 will be limited by the amount of shipping available to move men and equipment."

There is no doubt that Germany is building submarines faster than the Allies are sinking them, the British shipping expert continued, but he declined to express opinions on the Nazi rate of production or the size of their underwater fleet.

$1,500,000 Is Provided For Buying Butter

OTTAWA, March 4. — (CP) — Provision of $1,500,000 for the purchase of butter to maintain prices established by the prices board, and to pay necessary storage, insurance and freight charges thereon, was contained in agriculture department estimates tabled in the House of Commons yesterday by Finance Minister Ilsley as part of the war appropriations.

Butter prices for various zones in Canada have been established by the prices board to maintain production at as even a level as possible.

TOTAL APPROPRIATION

The total war appropriation for the agriculture department was $14,240,309 against $20,820,000 last year.

Estimates for the agricultural supplies board within the agriculture department included an item of $1,080,000 for assistance in disposing of agricultural products rendered surplus by war. The main surplus crops now existing in Canada are wheat and apples, for which export outlets have been reduced by war conditions.

The major single item in the agriculture estimates was $8,000,000 for assistance on the movement of western feed grains to eastern Canada. In addition, $2,000,000 is set aside for payment of eight cents a bushel on western wheat ured exclusively as feed for livestock.

Fertilizer subventions and freight allowances were expected to require $1,000,000 under the war appropriation. The subventions are used to encourage the use of fertilizer to enlarge crop production.

Coleman Mines Closed as Men Attend Meeting

COLEMAN, Alta., March 4.—(CP)—The International and the McGillivray mines, at Coleman will be idle, Thursday, as 900 men, crews of both mines, take the day off, to attend a mass meeting at which the medical services situation will be discussed.

For several months past, the coal miners have been attempting to secure the services of a doctor, but in spite of appeals to the federal government and to other authorities, have been unsuccessful.

At the present time, there is only one doctor, not a surgeon, in Coleman, for a population of 4,500.

More Cargo Planes To Supply China Claimed Big Need

LONDON, March 4.—(CP)—Lord Strabolgi, Labor, calling in the House of Lords yesterday for increased aid to China, said the obvious need is for more cargo planes.

He estimated that 1,000 cargo planes would supply the required equipment to enable China to drive the Japanese off the mainland of Asia.

From Asia's mainland Japan could be brought under sea and air blockade and if Japan's seaborne trade were cut, he said, her teeming millions would be brought to ruin.

The House adjourned upon being informed of the death of Capt. Edward Fitzroy, Speaker of the House of Commons.

VICTORIA, March 4 — (CP) — Premier John Hart yesterday studied in detail the federal budget and said regarding the pay-as-we-earn plan: "I think it is by far the better plan—at the end of the year a person is settled, as far as income tax is concerned."

Urges World Policy

Social Security Solution Must Await Axis Defeat Premier King Tells House

By JAMES McCOOK

OTTAWA, March 4.—(CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King said yesterday that the first objective of the United Nations is to free the world from fear and want, and that no solution of the question of social security can be sought and effectively carried out as long as the Axis continues to wage war on free countries.

He spoke in the House of Commons on a motion to establish a house committee to study ways and means of providing for social insurance, to "constitute a charter of social security for the whole of Canada."

Aggression could set social reforms at naught, he said, and it was necessary—as a background of social effort related to national purposes — that there should be a world policy which would maintain good and close relations among the nations.

Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative house leader, Stanley Knowles (C.C.F., Winnipeg North Centre) and T. L. Church (Prog. Con. Toronto Broadview) also spoke on the motion.

PROBLEM REMAINS

Mr. King said that when the nations had done their utmost to bring a larger measure of co-operation, there remained the social security problem of the individual nations. This problem was bound up with the position of others.

If low standards of living existed in many parts of the world and high standards in a few parts, international competition — unless regulated — would soon bring the high standards down to the level of the lower ones.

This made essential the realization by nations after the war that mutual aid would have to replace a system whereby relations are governed by force.

Above all things necessary for tomorrow was that today Canada should seek to prepare the way for ensuring a continuance of markets abroad and also a continuation of full employment once the special war conditions have passed away.

ECONOMIC HAZARDS

Mr. King said economic hazards such as unemployment might be caused by a financial crisis in one country bringing about industrial depression in another. The competition of foreign labor or some new invention might affect the lives of countless men and women and leave them in a position of want and destitution.

"What social security seeks to do is to find a means whereby these inevitable hazards will be met in some part at least through the action of the state and through action prescribed by the state," Mr. King said.

Any system of social security was based on the theory that all industry is or ought to be in the nature of social service and not merely a means whereby capitalists may increase profits or workers find the means of gaining a livelihood. Under that view men and women were the great asset of the state. They were entitled, when the state made possible the carrying on of industry, to have the state see they were protected against the inevitable economic hazards.

MAY NEED CHANGES

Mr. King said that it was only by permission of the state that an institution such as private property could exist, and its justification was the fact it had been thought the good of the greatest number would be served by encouraging individual initiative. But if a situation developed which was inimical to the community as a whole, that institution would have to be modified, controlled or make way for some other system.

Social security did not seek necessarily or at all in some cases to abolish the institution of private property but rather sought "to ensure that the benefits of private property will be secured to the community at large and that the institution of private property shall not be made a means whereby a very few may become increasingly rich and a great many suffer because of the inequalities that exist."

The government's policy was to bring about a comprehensive scheme of social insurance. The first step should be to study existing measures and examine those in other countries.

Mr. King said he felt it would be advisable for the committee to retain experts to assist them.

Special reference had been made to health insurance which might be given immediate consideration by the committee.

IDEA BELITTLED

Mr. King said some newspapers were inclined to belittle the idea of social security as being something vague and general, but Sir William Beveridge in his report on social security in the United Kingdom had declared he regarded social insurance as the first step to be taken toward meeting the main objectives of the Atlantic charter as far as it had to do with social conditions.

The house committee would have instructions to do something positive—to report on the most practicable measures of social insurance and the steps required to ensure their inclusion in a national plan. Questions of finance, and jurisdiction as between the Dominion and the provinces would have to be considered. The source of the revenue required would have to be studied.

Mr. Graydon said it was not possible entirely to separate the plans for peace from actual movements in the field of war itself.

Unless a higher value were placed on human values and a lesser value on material things than in the past, the peace would not be won.

He said he hoped the committee report would not be brought down so close to the end of the session that there would not be time to bring in legislation based on its recommendations. Canada would not be satisfied with just the report of a committee.

The House should have had a health insurance bill before any such legislation was considered by the committee.

DEVELOPMENTS WANTED

Development of the Unemployment Insurance Act was sought by the working people to ensure they would obtain benefits when they were unemployed, ill or incapacitated.

In studying old age pensions, the committee should consider reducing the age at which they became payable as people were "burning out" at an earlier age. The payment should be enlarged in line with the increased cost of living. The age limit on pensions for the blind should be removed.

Persons incapacitated by some health condition other than blindness also should be brought under the social security scheme.

Mr. Graydon said there had been rumors that a draft bill on health insurance had been provided in Pension Minister Mackenzie's department, and it had been expected legislation would be brought down at the beginning of this session.

The committee would do well to avail itself of the services of Sir William Beveridge if he is available to attend a meeting, Mr. Graydon said.

Mr. Knowles said legislation to provide for the immediate establishment of social security should be brought down at the present session.

FIRST LINE OF DEFENCE

The first line of defence against economic hazards was the ordering of Canadian economy so it would provide employment for all together with the production of goods and services necessary to provide a high standard of living and the distribution of goods according to need. When social insurance was the community's only line of defence against economic hazards it collapsed all too soon.

Mr. Knowles said 1,000,000 new homes might come out of current production after the war. Old age pensions could be $40 or $50 a month starting at the age of 65 or younger. Medical care should be made available to war veterans for life.

Mr. Church said the first duty of parliament in any scheme of insurance was to insure the care of soldiers and their dependents for three years after the war.

Action on a housing program was necessary.

"The armed forces can occupy mansion houses in the city from which I come (Toronto), while the soldiers' dependents live in cellars and all that kind of thing," said Mr. Church.

Appropriation Details

Air Force Expenditures Will Top Billion Mark To Meet Big Expansion

OTTAWA, March 4.—(CP)—Expanding air force activity has given Canada its second billion-dollar spending department of government, Finance Minister Ilsley disclosed yesterday in the House of Commons when he presented a detailed breakdown of his $3,890,000,000 war appropriation bill for 1943-44.

The estimated expenditures of the air department showed a larger increase over outlays for the previous year than those of any other branch of war activity and that department moved up with the army into the class of service which spends more than $1,000,000,000.

Deprecating suggestions that Canada's war effort or war expenditures were too great or that they were bankrupting the country, Mr. Ilsley said the growing internal debt can be easily handled by sound management and Canada cannot do too much to win the war.

ARMY'S SHARE

The army's share of the war appropriation bill is placed at $1,764,000,000 against estimated outlays of $1,078,000,000 in the year now ending. The air force claims $1,129,000,000 against $627,000,000 and the navy $480,000,000 against $208,000,000.

"I am asking for all I think we can spend," Mr. Ilsley said, "but I must add that if before the end of the year it will prove that we will need something additional that will be because we have actually been able to devote more of our resources to the war effort."

The minister told the house the war appropriation bill did not represent the whole financial measure of the war effort. There was also the mutual aid to the United Nations bill which would bring total war outlays to $4,800,000,000, 89 per cent of the government's total estimated expenditure and nearly three times the total cost of the whole of the first Great War to Canada.

STILL BEHIND BRITONS

"We on the home front in Canada are still away behind the people of Britain in the degree to which we have cut down our civilian consumption for the sake of the war effort," he said.

Before comparisons were made between Canada and the United States it should be remembered that the United States was neutral until Dec. 7, 1941.

"That country has been mobilizing with tremendous speed," he said. "It has pointed its sights very high indeed and if it is able to translate into action the $108,000,000,000 budget for which the President has asked we may have cause for envy rather than self-complacency."

Canada's danger was not a shortage of money as a nation but too much resulting in inflation, he said. A nation could not run out of money although it might run out of foreign exchange.

Far from bankrupting Canada, the war had multiplied production, brought new skills and equipment to Canada, enabled millions of people to put by some savings. Those who feared bankruptcy should think of the vastly greater wealth-producing capacity Canada would have after the war than before.

PAY BIGGEST ITEM

The biggest item in army estimates was pay and allowances for the troops at $539,730,211. Food, clothing and personal equipment for the soldiers will cost $185,868,300; ammunition $273,525,890; weapons, $123,070,907 and vehicles and transport $371,853,674.

The largest item for the navy is purchase, construction repair and upkeep of ships, $167,371,202.

The higher air estimates are due to three main factors: decision to maintain 58 R.C.A.F. squadrons overseas and pay all Canadian personnel serving in the R.A.F.; expansion of the combined training organization, and maintenance of larger fighting air forces on both coasts.

Pay and allowances in the air force will cost $238,023,237; ammunition and bombs $73,990,000; aircraft, engines and spares, $231,846,296; flying training contracts (with civilian companies), $33,805,829; maintenance of overseas squadrons, $303,783,729.

The department of munitions and supply appropriation at $166,000,000 is much less than expenditure this year of $869,000,000. The minister said the latter figure includes an item of $200,000,000 for purchase of the British interest in war plants in Canada. The rest of the reduction is believed due to the completion of various plants and less expansion of plant facilities in the future.

OTHER DEPARTMENTS

War expenditures of other departments of government are placed at $254,000,000 against $240,000,000 this year. There is also an estimate of $65,000,000 under the head of active assets for which no comparative figure for this year is given. It includes capital expenditures.

In the agricultural department is an item of $1,080,000 for assistance in the disposal of products made surplus by the war and one of $2,000,000 in respect of western wheat used for livestock feed.

Under the fisheries department are items totalling $500,000 for assistance in the construction of fishing vessels.

Labor estimates include one of $525,000 for vocational training for discharged members of the armed forces, one of $3,000,000 for removal of Japanese from the west coast area, one of $120,000 for payments to provinces in connection with day nurseries.

Items are included for the mines and resources department to look after assistance in the search for and development of oil and needed minerals.

PROVIDE TRANSPORTATION

An item of $100,00 to provide for transportation of wives and dependents of members of the forces overseas is allotted the immigration branch of that department and the same sum is provided to provide transportation for Canadian citizens being returned from the far east.

Provision of $640,000 to the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation for the projected short wave station is made under the heading of the war services department.

Full Medical Care Planned in Sask.

REGINA, March. 4.—(CP)—Two steps will be taken by the Saskatchewan medicine and hospital league this week to have a system of supplying full and complete medical and hospital service for all, regardless of any individual's ability to pay, instituted in Saskatchewan.

A brief outlining plans for such a system will be presented to the special legislative committee to be appointed by the government to investigate health and social services in Saskatchewan.

A delegation from the league will meet the government to ask that a plebiscite be held asking Saskatchewan people to state whether they would favor a state medical and health plan.

Premier Regrets No Provision For Auto Compensation

HALIFAX, March 4 — (CP)— Premier A. S. MacMillan of Nova Scotia expressed disappointment yesterday that no provision to reimburse the province for its loss in motor vehicle revenue was made by Finance Minister Ilsley Tuesday night in bringing down the 1943 budget.

Help The Red Cross

"SALADA" TEA

Will you save this life?

BLOOD DONORS MUST BE BACKED BY MONEY DONORS

MACHINE-GUNNED, bleeding to death, another Canadian or British fighting man is reached by the Medical Corps. Will he live? Yes, his chances are good, if he receives a blood transfusion in time.

Thanks to the Red Cross Volunteer Blood Donor Service, military doctors on the field and in hospitals, ashore and afloat, are equipped to administer the blood serum that cheats death.

Last year Canadian Red Cross collected 200,000 blood donations for use in bombed areas and on fighting fronts. This year the demand is far greater—world wide. Reserves of blood must be neither too little nor too late.

The present Canadian chain of Red Cross Blood Donor clinics MUST be enlarged and new ones MUST be equipped. Although doctors and nurses give their time, donors give their blood free, large sums are involved in maintaining clinics.

For funds to carry on, the Red Cross looks to you. The stark life-or-death nature of this appeal commands the wholehearted response of every Canadian. Think of our wounded, our prisoners of war in barbed wire Nazi camps.

Think of battle-ravaged Russia, starving China, and dying Greece and other peoples of the United Nations—then you'll give every dollar you can. Your donation will save many lives. Every dollar is urgently needed NOW.

Clearing the Arrears

Mr. Ilsley did not go the whole way in adopting the Ruml plan. He did not wipe out entirely the eight month arrears standing against the payers of income taxes. For some the new arrangement will amount to this, but for others it will not. Those whose 1942 personal incomes came from wages, salaries or profits are to be forgiven 50 per cent of the tax levy. Up to $3,000, those whose incomes came from investments are to be treated in the same way. In some cases this will work out to the cancellation of all arrears, half the levy being paid by the end of the year. In the other cases the balance, shown in returns to be made by June 30th, will have to be paid.

From April 1st all income taxpayers start on the new pay-as-you-go schedule, and it is stated that by that time most taxpayers will find themselves pretty well up with their arrears. From that time on, the monthly or quarterly payments will keep their income taxes 95 per cent paid-up.

Men Wanted

"In 1941 Canada produced five billion feet of timber. In 1942, when the need was greater production dropped to four and a half billion feet. In 1943 production will be less than four billion feet. For essential purposes ten billion feet could be used. Total production possible under present labor conditions will not be sufficient to fill even the most urgent war needs."

This paragraph in an informative despatch from an Ottawa correspondent explains why building material is scarce, why priorities have to be applied where the use of lumber is involved, and how the growing scarcity of manpower has cramped one important phase of the war effort. Not the war effort of Canada alone has been affected. Britain has been promised 40 per cent of the cut along the British Columbia coast, and the shrinkage in the cut has reduced deliveries heavily from the amount expected when this arrangement was made.

In Canada there is a shortage of lumber for hangars for the air force, docks for the navy, barracks for the army; for the construction of military truck bodies, for ship-building—including the building of landing barges needed for the invasion of Europe; for culverts, bridges and housing on the Alaska highway; for railway maintenance.

Coupled with the scarcity of farm labor when more food is needed, this scarcity of timber-producers when twice the 1941 output is needed, presents a situation that will have to be handled promptly and perhaps drastically. These needs are not negligible. They are imperative. They must be met, and the only way to meet them is to divert men from other occupations or take them from the reserve army.

Religious Education

The usual faulty and ill-considered reasoning was put forward by Trustee L. D. Hyndman in opposing the movement for religious education in the schools.

It is perfectly true, as Mr. Hyndman declared, that religious education is primarily the function of the church. It is also true that the church, in many respects, has failed to reach the great majority of youth.

But the failure of the church—not necessarily through its own fault—to adequately educate youth in religious matters, far from proving that other agencies should avoid the task, is all the more reason why other agencies should undertake it. Religious education is the function of the church. But it is not exclusively the function of the church. To establish the proper relationship between children and the Deity is the sacred and inescapable duty of every parent and of every man and woman in the community.

It would be strange if the Edmonton school board should fail to realize the board's responsibility for establishing the Christian principle in this community, when the Government of Canada is expending close to four billion dollars a year and innumerable precious lives to establish that principle in the world.

For that is what the war means. It is a conflict between Christian ideas and non-Christian ideas. If religious education is not the business of the state, and every minute organism of the state, then neither is the war the business of the state.

To eliminate the religious element from education is to make education a mere mechanical process. It is to destroy the very meaning of education. For one can no more divorce religion from education than divorce a man from his soul.

—V—

No Real Hardship

Total expenditure by the Dominion Government during the coming fiscal year is calculated to be $5,500,000,000. This compares with a total outlay expected to reach $4,470,000,000 during the present year, which will end with the close of this month.

The increase is something more than $1,000,000,000. Since the physical capacity of the nation is the only limit to the expansion of the war effort, it in fair to assume that the actual outgo next year may be in excess of even the "astronomical" figures given in the budget statement. But it is generally conceded that Canada has about reached the maximum production possible to its manpower besides maintaining our army, navy and air force and substantially increasing the latter two. That the expenditure next year will be much greater than the estimate does not on that account seem probable.

These are large figures. They indicate sums beyond comprehension, and of course beyond similarity to expenditures even in former war years. But their very immensity marks the rate at which our war effort has expanded and the proportions it has now attained. The figures are the sufficient reply to critics anywhere who may say Canada is not doing its part, as they are the sufficient indication to Canadians themselves of how large that part is.

To provide this money, and to thus support the national endeavor into which the money will mainly go, will in one way or another take something more than has hitherto been taken from the earnings of practically every person in Canada. More will have to be paid in taxes, and more invested in war bonds and savings certificates. That is inevitable, and by turning over a larger margin to the Government we are individually going to have less to spend on personal and family wants.

But at that, we in Canada are getting off easily in comparison to some of our Allies, who have no more to lose through defeat than we have and upon whom there rests no more direct responsibility to strike down the Axis conspiracy against freedom, order and decency.

Mr. Ilsley might have stated the fact more bluntly, but could hardly have stated it more correctly than when he said: "The evidence is pretty clear that all we have experienced so far on the average is a moderate decline from the peak of wartime consumption and some inconvenience of shopping and travelling." That will still be true after the new budget provisions come into full effect at the first of next month.

—V—

A decree at Buenos Aires authorizes the ministry of war to permit the exportation of armament and other war materials to Britain. The significance of the decree lies in the fact that Argentina is a neutral country. And that trade in that quarter is pretty dull since the Axis closed world markets to ordinary commerce.

Thinks Russia Might Quit War When Huns Expelled

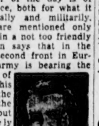

Stalin's Speech Emphasizes Soviet's Lack of Desire For Conquest

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

Stalin's order of the day is of great importance, both for what it reveals politically and militarily.

The Allies are mentioned only once, and that in a not too friendly manner. Stalin says that in the absence of a second front in Europe the Red army is bearing the whole weight of the war. Yet he affirms the superiority of the Red army. It is immediately stresses that the Red army is "not an army for conquest."

It was not created for conquest of foreign countries, but to defend the frontiers of Soviet land. The Red army has always respected the rights and independence of all peoples."

Dorothy Thompson

This is repeated several times, in various phraseology, and does not parallel the Casablanca demand for "unconditional surrender."

Stalin then defines the Soviet Union. It is less than that Russia which was divided by the treaty of Brest-Litovsk, dictated by the Germans after the last war.

Still to be "liberated" are: the rest of the Ukraine, Lithuania, Latvia, Estonia, Besserabia, the Crimea, Karelia, and "White Russia."

Only the last two concepts are not clear. We do not know exactly the limits of Karelia, the easternmost part of Finland, or White Russia, which in 1920 was divided between Poland and Russia.

That these are the limits of Russian claims is underlined by the fact that, at the same time, he guarantees the integrity of pre-Munich Czecho-Slovakia, including sub-Carpathian Russia, which is wholly populated by a branch of the Ukrainian population.

This, then, is no pan-Slavic concept. It is a Russian, and a security concept. Stalin gives notice that the Baltic states, Karelia and Besserabia, are never again going to be jumping off points for a crusade against the Soviet Union.

The guarantee for Czecho-Slovakia is a definite hint that the Russians want to expand into central Europe. It is Stalin's answer to the Goebbels campaign arousing fears of the Bolshevization of Europe.

Actually what Stalin claims is exactly what Hitler conceded him at the time of the Russo-German pact. It is a consistent Russian plan. It is what the Russians tried to recover of their historic territory after the German defeat in the last war—and were prevented from getting by western intervention. It is what they again tried to recover in negotiations with both the British and the Germans in 1939.

This statement of political aims occurs in an account of the military situation. Stalin, as always, is cautious in the makes, however, three claims; first, that the Russians will drive the Germans out of Russia alone, and regardless of any action taken by the Allies. Second, that the Russian and German armies have reached equality—both as to numbers of trained men, and material, and that the Russian army is superior. Third, that the Germans will not be allowed to build a new defence line.

Stalin does not say it will be easy. He says the enemy has suffered defeat, but is not yet conquered. "They can recover if we allow them time to recover." But he repeats that the Russians will not give the Germans time to build new manpower and replace material.

Now, what is the meaning of this order of the day to us?

Stalin defines what Russian victory means. He says, "the Red army is an army of avengers." But the avenge outlined is on Russian soil — killing German invaders, chopping up their armies, putting them behind the 1941 frontiers—and nothing more. He does not say that he will make a separate peace on the basis of these Russian aims. Neither does he say that he will reject one.

Friendly Europe

Russia does not want to make an isolationist policy. That can be categorically stated. Russia wants a friendly Europe in a friendly world, with a system of collective security. But as this column has often said, "Great nations (especially victorious ones) always have alternatives." The frontiers demanded by Russia have never been accepted by the United States—and indeed cannot be, under our constitutional system, unless the President makes a secret treaty, which he positively will not do.

There are signs both in Europe and America of such an hostility to Russia, that it gives Russian leadership some reason for suspicion. As things look at present it is by no means certain that the defeat of Germany will assure a non-fascist Europe, or one prepared to adopt a good neighbor policy towards Russia.

What is whispered about negotiations with Finland and Italy is heard as through a loud-speaker in the Kremlin, and probably distorted.

But if Russia does not step beyond her frontiers to fight the German there is a difference between a Russia that is still in the war, and a Russia that might get out of it, if her aims are accomplished alone.

Our own crisis in North Africa makes it the more important that the western powers act somewhere else. If we have all our eggs in one basket, the result may be dismaying.

Britain appears to see the situation clearly. The great celebration in London of the Red army's victories is driving the German propaganda machine quite crazy.

Spring Shoes and Their Care

Consider Your Wardrobe Before Making Your Purchase

By MARY ALICE QUAYNE

Only the time tested favorites in shoe styles will survive this spring. The classic sandals, pumps and oxfords seen in the previews are a promise and a portent of lithe, light-hearted walking for you in 1943.

The trick to watch for in the seasons ahead is all those new accessories. Simple, wartime dresses and suits will take their cue from the shoes, purse and hats you wear with them, and juggling accessories is an art in which you will soon be proficient, if you aren't that way already.

Jet Ornaments

A new and different combination will be sheer black mesh stockings paired with jet-ornamented black pumps. The jet trimming of the pumps is flat, fastened smoothly to the vamp, a device that will rival the standup type of ornament.

You will realize how very conservative most of the shoes are when you hear that the fanciest footgear shown for evening is none other than that faithful standby, the silver kid sandal. As to arresting color combinations, the most unusual is the pairing of two-tones the Ukrainian population. gray suit with flat-soled brown shoes and a brown purse.

Wise Buying

Men usually buy shoes for quality and lasting features only, but women want style and suitability as well as long wear. When they shop, therefore, they must consider not only practical features, but their wardrobes, and fitting the shoe to the clothes as well as to the foot. They must get the most possible "staying power" in the shoes she buys.

In the United States where shoes are rationed, it's obvious that women are buying the best quality they can afford. Perfect fit, good wearing qualities, basic types and colors that will go with almost everything—all these are being considered by them before they surrender the precious coupon. These points should be considered by us even though we can buy more than one pair before June.

Types Available

Among the types available that will seem to stretch your shoe wardrobe are the practical suit shoes that will serve for most daytime hours, comfortable ties and pumps of sturdy calf or other good leathers in staple colors, most of them with medium heels.

Patent leather is a good mixer, will go with most spring suits, and can be worn with prints and sheers later, too.

Handbags to match all these types are plentiful, so that you can assemble accessory sets to go through the season.

Essential Care

Taking care of your new shoes, and those you have already, is as much a part of wisdom as buying with discretion.

After you have bought a pair of comfortable and suitable shoes (always buy them big enough, as tight shoes get out of shape quickly, it is a good idea to have them polished at once, if the leather is the type that takes polish. This preserves the leather, and gives it a protective coating against first wearing scratches. Polishing them regularly through their lifetime is important too.

It's good to know, too, that lower heels make your shoes last better, as high heels throw your foot out of its natural shape, and puts extra strain on the shoe.

Another important point is to have at least two pairs of everyday shoes if you can, and wear them alternately, as it rests the leather, and gives them a chance to dry thoroughly. Airing is important, and it is helpful to even put them in the doors if possible.

Use Shoe Horn

Use a shoe horn in putting shoes on, as you are likely to strain or break the back of your shoes by forcing.

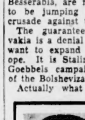

Heat is a natural enemy of shoes, so never dry them near a radiator, or store them in a hot place.

Protect them by wearing rubbers when it rains.

Keep shoe trees in them if the trees fit and are not so strong that they stretch the shoes out of shape. Those wooden ones that are shaped like a foot are the best kind.

With the exception of the few people who are on their feet virtually all the time, or have an unusual amount of walking to do, three pairs a year (the average each person can have in the States) is more than enough, if bought wisely and given proper care.

My Day

BY ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

NEW YORK CITY. — Yesterday morning I found my old friend, Mr. Frank Harting of the General Motors Company, awaiting me at my apartment. There were several other people who were going out with us to the Chevrolet factory in Linden, New Jersey. A group of factories in the east have become the eastern aircraft division of the General Motors Company.

I had been asked particularly to see this plant because of the efficient way in which they feel they are running their cafeteria. Right after our arrival at the factory, we went to look at the counters before the next shift came in for food.

I have seldom seen a more attractive room. There was plenty of light, flowers on the tables, and the otherwise plain walls were decorated with banners and war savings bond posters. The food, itself, was arranged with such an eye for color, that the whole room looked as though some painter had made a picture with the object of giving one an impression of light and color.

We then saw a movie depicting the whole conversion process of the plant. This gave me my first idea of how much is involved in changing over from the building of motors to the building of planes.

About one-third of the employees are women, and they expect to go up considerably, probably to employing fifty per cent of women in the plant. They also expect to increase the total number of workers in the next few months. They have four women counsellors, in charge of the women, who take an interest in their problems and who are there to be helpful.

I saw the Red Cross rest room, with two nurses in charge. Each girl has a locker and a clever arrangement of locking her coat to the hanger, as well as keeping her bag in safety. We had lunch in the cafeteria and it was a good meal.

Then we walked through the plant and I had an opportunity to talk to this fine section of the larger army of workers, which, today, throughout the nation, is making it possible for people all over the world to win the battle of democracy. They were a wonderful looking group and one could not help feeling very proud of America's working men and women.

In the afternoon, I had a meeting of the Cosmopolitan Club in the interests of the Women's Trade Union League, to which a number of New York State union leaders came. Miss Rose Schneiderman and I were anxious to talk over the problems of the league and its opportunities for usefulness in the future.

Last night, Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, Jr., and I went to see "The Patriots," we both like historical plays. Perhaps at the present time it is a good thing to see a play like this and to realize that one's anxieties are no greater than those which Washington and Jefferson endured in founding our republic. I thought the play well acted and enjoyed the evening very much.

C.C.F. and Tories in Accord

Two Parties Agree on What Economic Changes Should Be Made

By GRANT DEXTER

OTTAWA—If you were to step into the House of Commons and ask various members of Parliament what changes are necessary in present economic policy, you would get much the same answers from Conservatives and C.C.F.'s. This is remarkable, if for no other reason; because both pride themselves on the dissimilarity of their views.

In the debate on the address, however, the C.C.F.'s voted for the conservative amendment to limit the "state of the nation" debate; the annual free-for-all on general policy.

Having agreed on the policies outlined by the Conservatives, the group of course, would part company. But their agreement must be reckoned a powerful influence upon the government.

The Conservative amendment called for a new manpower policy, better terms for labor, and higher prices. The amendment struck directly at the government's anti-inflation policy. If accepted by the government—which it was not—it would destroy the price and the wage ceilings.

The C.C.F. members joined with the Conservatives in criticizing the price ceiling and demanding higher farm prices. Some of the C.C.F.'s adopted the "parity price" formula of determining the fairness of prices on a population basis. Agriculture, it was argued, was entitled to the same proportion of the national income as the farm population bears to the total population.

With respect to the wage ceiling, the C.C.F. could and did speak much more authoritatively than the Conservatives, because some of its members are union men and many unions are affiliated with the party. That is especially true of the steel unions.

Thus, it has been a matter of argument as to whether or no the real purpose of the steel strike was to break the wage ceiling or to obtain higher pay for the relatively small minority of the workers who are underpaid. Clarence Gillis, C.C.F. member for Cape Breton, dealt with this point. Mr. Gillis' constituency includes the Nova Scotia steel industry and nobody in parliament challenged his authority to speak for the steel workers.

The cause of the steel strike, said Mr. Gillis (page 175, unrevised Hansard), was the decision of the government to enforce the wage ceiling. He repeated this declaration (page 176) in unequivocal terms:

"I know definitely that it was adherence to the price ceiling and wage stabilization policy that precipitated the whole matter." He went further: "If we are to adhere to that (the wage ceiling), and use it as a basis for the present inquiry, then the War Labor Board has not authority to do more than what was done by the Barlow commission and we shall have it all over again, even before it starts."

The steel strike, said Mr. Gillis, is not settled. The workers, he said, accepted the government's proposals and went back to their jobs. "With a proviso that, if their full terms and their full demands were not met within thirty days, they would resume the walk out." The settlement, he said, was really a "armistice".

Apart from agriculture and labor, the C.C.F. members were more severe than the Conservatives in proposing increases in pensions for dependents' allowances and so on. And Mr. Coldwell's post-war programme of spending $5 billions in two years was far beyond any offers from the Conservative benches. The Conservatives refused Mr. Coldwell's proposal. They regarded it (page 470 unrevised Hansard) as a transparent attempt to buy the people with their own money.

The main point, however, is that there was not one member of the C.C.F. who had a good word to say for the price or the wage ceilings. Not once was the government encouraged to carry on the fight against inflation. On the contrary, the government was attacked for not raising prices and wages

Naturally, the Social Crediters were not to be outdone in the field of promises either by the Conservatives or the C.C.F.'s. It is true, that the Social Crediters had no need to raise their sights on either prices or wages. They had gone the limit long ago.

The Social Crediters, however, were delighted with the turn of events. The generous impulses of his rivals gave Mr. Blackmore a chance to score. He had a point and he relished making it.

He referred acidly to the promises of "politicians." He congratulated Mr. Graydon "warmly" on his proposals. They were, he said, "beautiful words." And here was the stiletto — where was the money going to come from? And if the Canadian people could be more beautiful than a nice round sum like five billion dollars? But where did Mr. Coldwell propose to find it?

Mr. Blackmore turned the blade deftly and with pleasure. Obviously, he felt that it is in times like these that social credit really rings the bell.

United Nations Co-Operation

Allied Executive Committee Required at Once, View of Clapper

By RAYMOND CLAPPER

WASHINGTON—The first rudimentary machinery of the United Nations apparently is about to come into existence.

We learn from the significant Toronto address of Sumner Welles, under-secretary of state, that the United States is ready to undertake discussions with other members of the United Nations.

Secretary Welles like many others feels that it is dangerous to delay in creating a body through which the United Nations can work after the war. The forward look that is indicated in his Toronto address is to be a most tentative and modest one.

Raymond Clapper

The proposal in hand now is that the United Nations should set up machinery for the purpose of assembling and studying all international aspects of the problem of freedom from want. In this proposed study of how to achieve freedom from want, questions of reemployment after the war, of trade relations, gold and currency problems, and international investment would be examined.

Evidently this is what President Roosevelt had in mind the other day when he told his press conference that a United Nations conference was under consideration to discuss plans for a post-war international food supply program, and possible joint use of our surpluses. Now it appears that the program actually is broader than that of food supply alone.

Secretary Welles has long been pressing for some kind of a start toward giving enduring structure to the United Nations.

At Toronto he voiced again the thought that he and many others have expressed repeatedly, when he said that there would be "utter disaster" if we came to the end of the war without providing some means by which the nations could collaborate in recovery policies and in assuming joint responsibility for conserving peace.

There had been hopes that something more substantial and more extensive might be developed soon, something in the nature of an executive body for the United Nations. Such an organization should have been in existence to take over the civilian side of the North African affair. But that has not materialized, and there is no sign of such a development soon.

The project for putting a United Nations group to work studying the problem of freedom from want is a step toward the end in mind. It isn't a very aggressive step. In fact it is just barely perceptible progress because it is no very great achievement to persuade nations to appoint representatives to meet together and discuss how they can provide employment after the war, now the world can be fed, how international investment might be developed. Collection of information of how the resources of the United States may be used in helping to restore the wounds of the world after the war.

That's a beginning. A beginning, however modest, is to be welcomed, for the way is long and hard, and it is time that the journey was begun.

So while I don't think any world-shaking step is being taken, it is a realistic move. As Secretary Welles says, it such study and discussions is not begun now, the various governments may allow divergent views to crystallize and make any agreement hopeless. And if there is no peace, then we have the prospect of only brief interlude before a worse war begins.

But this is "island-by-island" method of working toward peace. It may be useful in existence to take it too slow in diplomacy. As in the Pacific, broader, bolder strokes are required.

A United Nations executive committee still is needed. One or two reasons against it can be cited and the only answer to them is to create the council and see who it is that insists on staying out of the United Nations. I don't believe any nation would stay out if it could get in. If there is such a nation we won't lose anything by finding it out now.

Wheat Futures Score Advance

WINNIPEG, March 4—(CP)—More than 4,000,000 bushels of May wheat changed hands on Winnipeg grain exchange today with exporters, mills and southern houses the buyers. The May future advanced ½ cent to 92⅛ cents a bushel.

Much of the aggressive buying in the wheat pit reflected heavy export sales of Canadian wheat to Switzerland, estimated at 2,000,000 bushels.

Grain inspections at Winnipeg yesterday totalled 109 cars compared with 358 last year. Country marketings amounted to 379,000 bushels against 271,000 a year ago.

War News Summary

THURSDAY, MARCH 4

Russia: Two Red Army offensives northwest and south of Moscow gained momentum as the Russians smashed southwestward from the fallen fortress of Rzhev, capturing 11 towns and villages and raised an increasing threat to Orel to the south, in evident determination to wipe out once and for all the German menace to the Soviet capital.

Two hundred miles south of Moscow, the Russians also were applying a many-sided pressure to Orel, a southern threat to the Russian capital.

Stockholm dispatches reported that the Germans were getting ready to abandon Orel, a strongpoint on the Moscow-Kharkov railway and only remaining point in the southern winter defence line of the Germans in 1941-42.

North Africa: Field Marshal Rommel has shifted at least a part of his armored forces to southern Tunisia to meet the British 8th Army along the Mareth line, Allied headquarters in North Africa announced today, but in the north the drive of Col-Gen. Jurgen von Arnim forced a four-mile Allied withdrawal near the sea.

The change of emphasis from the central to the southern Tunisian fronts by the German chieftain was further indicated by field reports received at Allied headquarters that British and American forces, retracing the path of their most recent defeat, had occupied Sidi Bouzid, about 10 miles from Faid Pass, without meeting opposition.

The destruction of seven Axis vessels and the damaging of nine others by British submarines in the continuous war of the supply lines in the Mediterranean was announced meanwhile by the admiralty in London.

Pacific Area: A huge convoy of 22 Japanese ships — 10 cruisers and destroyers and 12 transport and supply ships—has been wiped out by Allied air forces which have scored one of the greatest air-sea victories of the war, headquarters in Australia announced today.

In addition to thousands of naval personnel killed or drowned in burning, exploding and sinking ships, about 15,000 Japanese troops were killed, and 62 Japanese planes were shot down.

Air War: The Germans sent between 30 and 40 bombers in the first of two stabs across the British coast to attack London and vicinity last night in a weak retaliation for the huge R.A.F.-R.C.A.F. raid on Berlin Monday night.

The German raiders crossed paths with another strong force of British four-motored bombers which picked Hamburg for their target.

Taxes Increased In Newfoundland On Income, Profits

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., March 4. —(CP)—Taxation increases on income nad excess profits aimed at producing an additional $740,000 annually were announced Tuesday night by Finance Commissioner Wilde.

The increases apply to 1942 earnings.

The commissioner said the increases were decided on to counter balance a treasury loss of $300,000 caused by recent remission of the war profits tax on certain commodities and an expected reduction in customs duties due to rationing and other factors.

Australia Now Has Spitfire Fighters

SOMEWHERE IN AUSTRALIA, Feb. 15.—(Delayed)—(CP)—British Spitfire planes now are operating in northwestern Australia, it has been disclosed, and airmen here say they consider them far superior to the Japanese Zero fighter.

Make It Attractive

Many an expensive restaurant has gained a reputation by serving simple, homey food with style and flourish. The psychology is easy to copy! The simpler the food, the more necessary to make the table and the dish attractive looking. Children and grown-ups too are more likely to eat what is good for them if it looks pretty.

THE CITY OF EDMONTON

Notice to Prospective Home Builders

The City of Edmonton has been assured by the Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Munitions and Supply, that every effort will be made to assist in the securing of materials for the construction of homes in the City of Edmonton. In order to obtain this assistance it will be necessary to submit to the different Controllers lists of materials that must be obtained by priority assistance.

Your City Commissioners are anxious that all those contemplating the construction of homes or housing units notify the City Architect's Department without delay of their intentions. It is well known that even with the best of priorities certain materials and fixtures are difficult to obtain because of the necessity of supplying military requirements first.

It is therefore urgent that action be taken as early as possible to obtain the allocation of priority so that orders for material and equipment will be placed with the manufacturers without delay. You are, therefore, requested to assist in this effort by noting the procedure below:

1. For any construction work pertaining to dwellings or housing accommodation costing over $500.00 it is necessary to obtain from the Controller of Construction a license to spend the sum asked for. Application forms to the Controller of Construction can be obtained from the City Architect's office, Civic Block. These should be completed as quickly as possible and returned to the City Architect's office for transmission to the Controller of Construction.

2. At the same time the applicant should have prepared, or take immediate steps to prepare, a detailed list of all the materials, fixtures, or appliances that cannot be obtained locally without priority assistance. This list should be explicit in detail, that is, state not merely one hundred pounds of nails required, but one hundred pounds 3½-inch nails. An estimate of the value of the materials should be given, and if the applicant is desirous of purchasing these items through a particular dealer such information should be stated.

3. When the detailed lists of a sufficient number of projects are obtained the items will be sorted and listed for the direction of the Priorities Branch at Ottawa and sent to them for an allocation number.

4. When the allocation of priorities is obtained it will then be arranged to have the materials or equipment purchased through a local wholesaler or dealer and at this stage the prospective home owners will probably be asked to provide the funds for the purchase of these materials.

5. When the wholesaler or dealer has had the goods delivered to him, then they will be distributed to the home owner or his agent.

Even if you are not contemplating building immediately, but sometime this year, please make your request now, as it cannot be too strongly emphasized that certain goods will take several weeks or even months to be obtained. However, do not ask for priority assistance unless you are prepared to go ahead with your building this year and are prepared to put up the necessary money to pay for these materials. It is illegal for any dealer or wholesaler to ask for any priority assistance for goods that do not go into the actual construction of the building.

We Suggest That You Cut This Out for Future Reference

The Bulletin's SPORT SHOW by Hal Dean

SPORTS EDITOR

ALTHOUGH somewhat slow on the take-off, Canadian Athletic Club juniors went all-out in the second period and continued on the attack right up to the final whistle last night, in the opener of the total-goal series with Calgary Royals for the provincial title.

Nine goals constitute quite a sizeable lead and unless the Calgarians can work some sort of a miracle in the return game tonight, another Alberta championship will have been won by Edmonton's representatives in western playdowns.

Next round brings the Alberta winner against Trail with the series commencing on Saturday and the western semi-final with Saskatchewan's top club is scheduled to begin March 22.

POINTS WELL DISTRIBUTED

LAST night's marked the eighth straight victory for the Canadians and barring accidents this club should be hard to keep out of the western final.

That the team's punch is not confined merely to one or two members is amply illustrated by the fact that 10 out of 12 players participated in the points distribution. Goalie Bill Lancaster and Defenceman Frank Popovich were the only two not cut in on the melon.

Hassie Young and Fred Smitten, taken from the E.A.C. team, worked in well with Ken Cox as pivot and the two collected a total of nine scoring points. The Kuzyk-Baer-Tennant string picked off five counters and a like number of assists.

Bob Causgrove snared the other goal and his defence pal, Glenn Gray, was in with a pair of assists and Earl Chisholm had one. Don Dewar looked good on the line and drew down one assist.

VISITING GOALIE GOOD

CHIEF difference between the two teams was in the matter of combination, the Royals with the exception of a few instances not showing any particular aptitude in that direction.

Busiest man on the Calgary lineup was goalie Jack Sage and this boy incidentally put on quite a show. Although not so finished a performer as Lancaster for Canadians, Sage gave a real display. Don Anderson and Tommy Kennedy were the pick of the rest of the club.

Two or three of the Royals were inclined to transgress the rules in checking and this had a considerable bearing on their eventual downfall. A pair of goals in 20 seconds when John Wells drew his first penalty appeared to furnish the spark for the eventual rout of the visitors.

MAY CONTINUE BASKETBALL

THERE is a possibility that an additional schedule may be worked out to provide games one night a week for all teams entering as a result of the meeting of the City Men's Basketball League held at the Y.M.C.A. last night.

Air Transport Civilians, U.S. Army Engineers and Y.M.C.A. would be certain starters in the new league which would operate for five weeks more. Aircraft Repair is a likely entrant and in the event of six teams coming in, the league might be split into two sections.

Another meeting is to be held next Wednesday night at the Y and representatives of teams interested are invited and in the meantime it is suggested that the names be handed in to Armour Bull, secretary. Crests for the U.S. Army Engineers, city league champions, were authorized at the meeting.

Edmonton Swamps Calgary 10-1 in First of Two Game Series

Canadians Lead by 9 Goals in Junior Final

Ten Players Have Share in Canuck Goals

By HAL DEAN
Sports Editor, Edmonton Bulletin

CANADIAN Athletic Club ran in seven goals in the second period and added three more in the third to take a 10-1 decision from Calgary Royals at 119 Street rink last night in the first of their two-game total-goal series for the Alberta junior title. Edmonton's representatives in the playdowns accordingly will carry a nine-goal lead into the second game which is scheduled for Calgary tonight.

Ten of the 12 players on the Canadian lineup appear in the goal summary detailing the rout of the Calgarians. Ken Cox led the scoring with four and Vic Kuzyk bagged a pair. The others went to Fred Smitten, Jack Tennant, Bob Causgrove and Frank Baer.

Hassie Young, former E.A.C. right winger, furnished the passes for three counters, the same as Frank Baer. Glenn Gray collected two assists and Earl Chisholm, Don Dewar, Kuzyk, Smitten and Tennant all had one each.

Don Anderson secured the lone Calgary tally in the first period.

Jack Sage played a remarkable game in the nets for the Calgary club and time after time saved what appeared to be certain goals.

At the opposite end Bill Lancaster had a comparatively quiet evening once the first period was over. He outguessed Anderson in the last few minutes when a major penalty shot was awarded and made a great save a few moments later when Anderson and Tommy Kennedy swung in on a breakaway.

Canadians couldn't seem to get rolling in the first period and in this session the Royals looked their best.

Only one counter was registered and it went to the visitors on a goal by Kuzyk who batted the puck from Don Anderson as he swung out in front of the Edmonton goal. Earl Chisholm swished Kuzyk's rebound into the net with less than half a minute remaining.

Canadians looked an entirely different team in the second period and kept up almost a continuous power play.

Vic Kuzyk secured the first goal, taking a pass from Glenn Gray at 2:19 and this seemed to set the Edmonton juniors in motion.

When Anderson was chased for tripping the local club turned on the power and the red light was flashed twice in 20 seconds.

Fred Smitten took a pass from Frankie Baer just over the blue line and finished off the play beautifully by neatly drawing out Goalie Jack Sage at 4:15. Then Ken Cox combined in a three-way rush with Hassie Young and Earl Chisholm to raise the score to 3-1.

The fourth Edmonton goal was also a Cox-Young product, the latter slipping a pass to the Canadian centre at 12:45. Kuzyk's second counter was a blazing shot from close in which topped off a double play from Tennant and Baer at 14:15 when the Royals were shorthanded.

John Wells was still serving his second penalty of the period when Bob Causgrove scored on Glenn Gray's pass at 14:27. Canadians' seventh goal came at the last minute when Tennant cut in close to pick a corner after a rink-length passing play with Kuzyk and Baer.

Edmonton juniors continued to press in the third period and kept Canadians down most of the time in enemy territory even while Gray was serving a penalty, actually scoring one decision over the former title holder. Henry Armstrong. He will be out of action at least six weeks.

Buffaloes Beat "M" Depot 9-8 in Intermediate Opener

CALGARY, March 4.—(CP)—Trailing 3 to 7 early in the third period the amazing Calgary Buffaloes utilized body checking tactics to soften up their opponents and then went on to take a 9-8 victory over No. 3 Manning Pool of Edmonton Wednesday night in the first of the two-game total-goal playoff that will decide the Alberta Intermediate "A" hockey championship Thursday night. Jimmy Foxx Quits Baseball

CHICAGO, March 4—(AP)—Jimmy Dalton, general manager of Chicago Cubs, said he was surprised to hear that Jimmy Foxx, now a salesman for a New York oil firm, has indicated his retirement from baseball.

In Boston Wednesday the veteran first baseman, who came to the Cubs from Boston Red Sox last season and spent most of the time in a pinch-hitting role, said "I'm about at the end of the line, and I'd better stop while I have a good job."

"We would like him back, of course, but if he thinks he can better himself at his present job he's welcome to try it," said Gallagher.

CANADIAN SPORTSHOTS

By CHARLES EDWARDS

TORONTO, March 4 — (CP) — Death of Bill Taugher, 35, one of hockey's finest goalkeepers 10 years ago, recalls that Bill was the star of one of the greatest games in Canada's puck history—the Ontario junior final in 1926 between Taugher's Kingston Frontenacs and North Bay. The game was played in Toronto and Kingston trailed by three goals in the third period. They tied it up and each team scored in the first overtime period and again in the second. In the third extra period George Patterson fired the goal that gave Frontenacs a 6-5 win and sent them into the Memorial cup final where they lost to Calgary Canadians two games to one. Kingston won the first game of the final 4-2 but lost the next two by identical 3-2 scores.

Patterson, now with Indianapolis in the American League, is the only member of that Kingston team still playing hockey. Carl Voss and Taugher turned professional and Bill spent six years with Buffalo Bisons in the old International League before he was injured in March, 1934, in a game with London Tecumsehs. X-rays then showed Taugher suffered an injury to the base of his spine. He retired from hockey at a time when he was regarded as major league timber. Eighteen months ago he was stricken with paralysis and, despite an operation for removal of a brain tumor, never recovered.

—V—

Incidentally:

Best known of North Bay's 1926 junior hockey team were Sparky Vail and Pete Palangio . . . Manager Paul Thompson of Chicago Black Hawks says, his ace, Doug Bentley, "can't miss" the left wing berth on this year's N.H.L. all-star team.

Edmonton is toying with the idea of reviving senior football in the Alberta capital next fall. Many fine athletes are located there with the United States forces . . . Goalie Frankie Brimsek of Boston Bruins says this is the toughest season he has spent in the N.H.L. "They've scrambled the game so much that go-d netminding is becoming a lost art. How can you stop shots you don't even see."

A Good Gamble:

One of the few civilian hockey teams to make an outstanding showing this season was Quebec Morton Aces in the Quebec senior league. Lloyd McGowan of The Montreal Star congratulated their sponsor, Jimmy Morton, and adds: "They say Jimmy will clear around $20,000 on a season's operation with the Acemen in the new Quebec auditorium where he has a foolproof hook-up with the city on a percentage basis." Morton says, "We took a $10,000 gamble and we're going to be all right."

From Hot Springs, Ark., comes word that Count Fleet, the Derby favorite, is not likely to start at the Oaklawn meeting and probably will make his 1943 debut at Jamaica where he will race in the Wood Memorial, April 17, his principal Derby prep race.

The Wood shapes up as a Derby preview, now that Blue Swords and Devil's Thumb probably will be shipped north for it.

ANGOTT IN GOOD SHAPE

SAMMY ANGOTT, former lightweight champion, who arrived Tuesday from Washington, Pa., to begin training for his March 19th bout with the welterweight champion, Willie Pep, scales only 138 pounds although he has been out of the ring with bad hands since last September.

For the past two months Angott has been getting plenty of exercise as boxing instructor at Washington and Jefferson University. Sammy says his hands are in "perfect" shape now.

Manager Al Weich hopes to match Arturo Godoy of Chile, heavyweight champion of South America, with the winner of the Tami Mauriello-Jimmy Bivins bout, slated for Madison Square Garden March 12. Weill is confident Godoy can arrange passage from Chile to the United States soon.

GET MINOR LEAGUE CHAMPS

FRANK LEAHY, who returned to Notre Dame from Miami for George Keogan's funeral, reports that his health is improved greatly and that he hopes to get spring football practice under way on Monday. . . . John McDonald, general manager of the Montreal club, wise-cracked: "Well, I see where Durocher was thrown out again on his ear."

The National League seems to have snapped up more than its share of minor circuit champions as rookies for 1943. The Cubs have pitcher Kewpie Barrett of Seattle, leading flyger of the Pacific Coast League, shortstop Stanky of Milwaukee, most valuable player and leading batsman of the American Association, and outfielder Mizell Platt of Madison, Wis., batting champ of the 2-1 circuit. The Cardinals have pitcher Harry Brecheen of Columbus, leading American Association moundsman.

New York has Bobby Coombs of Jersey City, leading International League pitcher . . . also outfielder Vic Bradford of Jacksonville, Fla., batting champ of the South Atlantic League. The Phils came up with Robert Ortiz of Chattanooga, Southern Association batting leader. There are a flock of other "leaders" among the rookies in Ford Frick's division, although those mentioned are perhaps the most notable.

American League Outfields Are Hit By Enlistments

CHICAGO, March 4. — (AP) — American League batters may find a highball refreshing this summer—that is, the kind they lump into the outfield.

The garden appears to be the most vulnerable spot on the diamond, and may give up more extra base hits than ever before. Complete league rosters showed today that of the 135 men who have entered the armed forces—only nine less than during the First Great War—30 have been outfielders, most of them top garden variety.

The fields, although losing 45 players, the majority being rookies, rather than stars, still will be about as tight as ever with veterans eager to gobble up grounders in usual style.

Here as some comparisons:

Boston Red Sox: Pete Fox only outfield veteran, with regulars Tony Lupien, Bobby Doerr and Jim Tabor ready for infield. Eddie Lake of Sacramento groomed for short.

New York Yankees: Charley Keller will be familiar in left field. Probably surrounded by Tuck Stainback, Roy Weatherley, obtained from Cleveland, or rookies Joe Gordon, Frankie Crosetti and Nick Etten, bought from the Phils, may be backbone of infield. Have fine prospects in Bill Johnson (.290) and base-stealing George Stirnweiss (.270), both of Newark. Oscar Grimes and Bill Knickerbocker also valuable.

Detroit: Regular Roger Cramer returns, plus prize rookie, Dick Wakefield (.345) of Beaumont, voted most valuable in Texas League last year. Rudy York, Jim Bloodworth, Pinky Higgins and rookie Joe Hoover (.327) of Hollywood Weld infield.

St. Louis Browns: In good shape, with Chet Laabs, Glen McQuillen and Mike Kreevich, former of A's, for the garden; and mainstays George McQuinn, Don Gutteridge, Vern Stephens and Harlond Clift around the bases.

Change in Policy Pimlico Races

BALTIMORE, March 4—(AP)—The "stake-a-day" policy has been abandoned temporarily at Pimlico, turf track officials announced Wednesday there will be nine important events during the 15-day meeting April 22 to May 8.

The nine major stakes listed for the war-time session include the Preakness and the Dixie Handicap, with the 53rd running of the Preakness on May 8 serving as the climax.

The Dixie, second only to the Preakness in importance and tradition at Pimlico, will be run May 1, and will be maintained at the $20,000-added status.

St. John Takes Playoff Opener

CHARLOTTETOWN, March 4—(CP)—A relentless three-period attack by Saint John Beavers last night netted them a 6-1 victory over Charlottetown Abbies in the opener of a home-and-home, total-goal series in the Maritime Senior Hockey playdowns.

Winner of this series tangles with the victor in a series opening tonight between the Glace Bay R.C.A.F. team, Cape Breton champions, and Pictou Shipyards, A-P-C League titlists.

Notre Dame Loses 5-2

Vernon Captures Western Intermediate Semi-Finals

VERNON, B.C., March 4.—(CP)—Vernon Military All Stars advanced to the Western Canada Intermediate hockey finals by defeating Wilcox, Sask., Notre Dame Hounds 5-2 here last night. Vernon won the best of three series two games to one and will meet the Alberta champions—Calgary Buffaloes or Edmonton R.C.A.F. No. 3 Manning Depot—in the finals here.

Scorers for Vernon were Bink Moffat, Alex Cunningham, Jim Logue, Lefty Logue and Roger Middlemass and for Notre Dame Doug Toole and Chuck McCullough.

Vernon's devastating attack had the Hounds backed up in their defence zone during the majority of the game. With defence players parked on the blue line they blazed away at the Hounds net relentlessly. Hounds didn't seem to be able to stick to the rubber and battle in the same style that brought them victory in the second game of the series Monday night.

Toole's goal for the Hounds in the early minutes of play started the Army boys on their determined bid for victory. Moffatt from Cunningham opening the scoring for Army on a power play. Cunningham and Jim Logue finished the scoring in the period on scrambles. Lefty Logue took his own rebound in the second canto to give Army a 6-1 lead. McCullough came back for Hounds early in the final chapter but Middlemiss equalled this marker seconds later to finish the scoring. Hounds power play in the last minutes of play failed to net results.

King Part-Time Worker In British War Plant

LONDON, March 4.—(CP)—The King has become a part-time worker in a war factory, standing at a bench two evenings a week turning out precision parts for R.A.F. guns, it was disclosed last night.

Fellow-workers say he "clocks in" regularly at 6 p.m., wearing overalls, and leaves about 8:30 p.m. His foreman said he is "clever with his hands and the use of precision tools."

Recently the Queen, accompanied by Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret, visited the plant to see and watched the King at work. He was able to answer all their questions about his task, the foreman said.

ASKED FOR JOB

Several members of the Royal staff were doing similar work at the factory when the King went to visit them. He watched them a while—and then asked if he could have a job.

The foreman pointed out that His Majesty would need some training and the King asked how long. That, the foreman explained, would depend on his aptitude.

The King laughed and said: "I rather fancy I might be pretty good at the job. I think I'll start at once."

He then took his coat off; put on overalls and got down to shift. His first lesson lasted one hour and he was pronounced proficient within a week.

The Daily Mail, which published the story said His Majesty wears grey slacks and a sweater under his overalls. He accepts no pay and has never been late.

edge of the flight deck, look over and then shrug their shoulders and turn back. Someone would ask: "Not going over yet?" They would reply: "Oh, no. It's too crowded still. I'll wait till they thin out a bit."

I took a walk around the gun deck. Back on the aft 5-inch gun position, where the gun crews were still standing by on the chance of a late afternoon Jap attack, I heard of the casualties they had suffered from machine guns and bomb splinters. They told me one of their men was busy busy feeding shells from the ammunition hoist into the automatic fuse-setter when a wave of torpedo planes sprayed them with machine-gun fire and passed on. One man went right on working, lifting two more of these heavy shells from the hoist to the setter, before suddenly dropping dead. He must have been hit minutes before and yet kept right at his job.

When I got back to the flight deck, Captain Rupert Lawrence Hamilton, who had gathered around him the members of his squadron, was telling them several tall tales on the fortunes of war, a sort of classroom lecture out there on a deck that already was burning their feet from the blaze below.

We were scattered all about under the wings of planes. Someone called, "There's plenty of ice cream over here if any of you care for it." It developed that some bright lads had gone below and brought up several cartloads of gallon cans. It was most welcome because the scuttle-butts (water-drinking fountains) had been dry since 1 p.m. Now, standing on the hot deck with the sun still beating down, the ice cream was delicious and refreshing.

Some of the fliers were getting out their little yellow rubber boats and giving them to the mechanics who now were sliding down the lines. These craft carry one man most buoyantly and a number of boys who used them didn't even get their feet wet.

There were now only a few men left on deck. Just leaving was Lieut. Gayler. He dived off the 50-foot-high deck into the water and swam out about 100 yards. Then I saw him turn round, swim back, and in a few minutes he had climbed one of the ropes and reappeared.

"What did you come back for?" one of the fliers asked.

"Oh, I got a bit lonely out there. I didn't know any of those guys. When are you fellows goin' to come?" he replied.

CAPTAIN BLOWN OFF

A roll call taken later revealed that 92 per cent of the Lexington's personnel had been saved. It is believed that all of those lost were the victims of air fighting, bombing and torpedoing, and finally of fire fighting and internal explosions. Captain Sherman believes that every man who was alive when the abandon ship order was given, was rescued.

My preparations for going over consisted of transferring all notes to the breast pocket of my shirt, where I hoped they would stay dry. Then, selecting a rope with a big knot at its end, I cautiously lowered myself down hand over hand. I climbed into a raft and then across into a whaleboat with others. This boat towed several filled rafts to a cruiser, where all disembarked.

I stayed aboard the cutter with the coxswain and we started off again to pick up another load. We headed out on the port side where there were a number in the water who had been swimming for a long time. We chugged across the stern of the Lex and, while the coxswain handled the engine and rudder, I heaved swimmers into the boat.

HEAVY EXPLOSION

As we again passed the Lexington's stern on our way back to the cruiser, there was a heavy explosion aboard her that sent the amidships portion of the flight deck tumbling into the air. Flames burst through. Almost immediately there came another blinding flash, a tremendous shock and a billowing cloud of black smoke soaring skyward as the 1,000-pound bombs exploded. Bits of the steel deck and side plates showered the sea for hundreds of yards around.

I later learned that Commander Seligman and Capt. Sherman were on ropes, just making their way off the Lexington, when this blast threw them into the sea.

Only a few minutes later, the after tip of the flight deck was blasted away when the torpedo-bombers let go. Captain Sherman and Commander Seligman were swimming to a cutter when this happened, from where they were transferred to a cruiser.

They were the last men off. Seligman told me of this later:

"We were walking back to the stern and I was urging the skipper to hurry, because I knew those bombs were overdue. He suddenly stopped, asked me to wait a minute and trotted over to the island. I saw him go into his emergency cabin and, as he came out, he was firmly adjusting his No. 1 cap to his head. He ran with the newest and heaviest gold braid. He grinned and said: 'I hear there's not to be any more gold braid till after the war, and I wouldn't like to have to use that yellow cotton substitute. Thought I'd better save my best one.'

Seligman tells that, when they reached the stern, the skipper ordered him to "lower away." He selected a rope and started down, but Capt. Sherman stood above him, musing as he looked back over the smoking ship.

"Come on, skipper," Seligman urged him.

Capt. Sherman slowly replied: "I was just thinking . . . wouldn't I look silly if I left this ship and the fires went out?"

A LADY TO THE LAST

It was 6:30 p.m. now and almost dark. Our whaleboat was filled with weary swimmers, some of whom were very ill after having swallowed seawater on top of ice cream.

All the men except Ensign George Markham and myself had climbed the boarding netting dropped from the cruiser's deck, when there was another terrific explosion aboard the Lex. The 16,000 to 20,000 pounds of torpedo war-head gunc otton finally had detonated.

George and I saw airplanes, plates, planks, pieces large and small all going up into the air in the midst of a blinding white flame and smoke. We pressed lovingly against the heaving steel side of that cruiser, hugging her for seconds while the debris splashed into the sea.

But even then, the apparently indestructible old Lex didn't sink. Instead, the list began to burn harder than ever. Flames were shooting hundreds of feet into the sky, where they were whipped by thick black smoke. In the deepening twilight, it was a sight of awful beauty, one that wrung the hearts of all who saw it.

At 7:15 p.m. Admiral Fletcher gave a signal for the fleet to reform and move away. The ships moved off slowly, as though reluctant to leave their gallant comrade.

We didn't leave her entirely alone. One destroyer stayed behind, circling around her. It was evident that she might burn for hours before sinking. What a signal beacon she made! Japanese subs or snooper planes could see her for 100 miles or more and pinpoint our position on their charts.

ORDERS TO SINK HER

So the admiral gave orders to sink her.

That lone, remaining destroyer sent four torpedoes coursing into the starboard side. The Lexington had been settling down through the hours, almost on an even keel. She shook herself as the torpedoes pierced her, and now, the settling was more rapid.

Still she remained upright, dipping either bow nor stern. Gradually, the waves folded over her.

One of her officers, standing beside me, murmured: "There she goes. She doesn't want to leave. She is going down with her head up. Dear old Lex. A lady to the last!"

Plan May Extend Life of Oil Field

CALGARY, March 4.—(CP)—An experiment which, if successful and adopted generally, may extend the life of the Turner Valley oil field, is now in progress ni Canada's only major crude oil field.

Conservation Board officials stated yesterday that for the first time in the history of Turner Valley field, waste gas which would otherwise be burned in flares is being returned to the formation.

By virtue of an agreement between the Board and the Anglo-Canadian Oil Company, Ltd., waste gas from the Frontier, Sundance and Prairie producing wells is being returned through the old Foundation well, no longer a crude oil producer.

All these wells are in the Anglo-Canadian group.

While the immediate effect is only to permit more efficient operation of the Anglo producing wells involved, a general adoption of the plan would, it is believed, boost the pressure in the Turner Valley reservoir, in time, and result in a greater ultimate recovery of crude oil from the field.

R.C.A.F. Veterans Back in Canada

OTTAWA, March 4.—(CP)—Air Force headquarters announced last night that battle-toughened veterans of the R.C.A.F. checked in at nearby Rockcliffe air station here yesterday before dispersing across Canada on well-earned leave.

The headquarters announcement said many of them, like FO. L. L. Sharpe, D.F.C., of Saskatoon, came from North Africa. From the same aerial front came PO. N. L. Stephenson, of Vancouver, an air gunner in a bombing squadron.

Ask Extension Of Legislature In Saskatchewan

REGINA, March 4.—(CP)—A. C. Stewart (Unity, Yorkton) gave notice in the Saskatchewan legislature yesterday of a bill he will introduce Friday urging extension of the ninth legislature.

The present legislature is now in its fifth session and under the provincial legislative assembly act an election must be held before another session could be held.

Mr. Stewart did not indicate how long of an extension the bill would suggest.

$640,000 Provided For Radio Station

OTTAWA, March 4—(CP)—Provision for expenditure of $640,000 on construction of a shortwave broadcasting station for the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation is made in the 1943-44 war appropriation estimates, tabled in the House of Commons yesterday by Finance Minister Ilsley. The station is to be built by the CBC at Sackville, N.B.

Postage Rates Reach New High With Increase

OTTAWA, March 4.—(CP)—Letter postage within Canada is raised to a new high with the imposition, effective April 1, of an additional cent to make it four cents for an ordinary out-of-town letter, under Finance Minister Ilsley's budget proposals presented to the house of commons Tuesday night.

Canada's new four-cent letter rate will be higher than the rate in most other countries but lower than the rate in the United Kingdom, which has the equivalent of a five-cent rate (2½ pence) since the start of the present war.

Under the budget proposals the new four-cent rate on out-of-town mail will not apply to letters mailed to the forces overseas.

POSTCARD RATE SAME

Letters mailed for delivery in the same city or town will cost three cents, instead of two cents, under the new postage level.

The one-cent rate on postcards, however, is not increased.

Post office officials said the increased rate applies only to first-class mail—that is, sealed letters. Unsealed letters, circulars, newspapers and Christmas cards, generally looked upon as second-class mail, will not be affected.

An announcement will be made before April 1 as to whether air mail postage will be affected by the new tax. At present the air mail rate is six cents, and officials said no final decision has yet been made whether this rate should be raised to seven cents.

Restless Horses Become Tangled With Parked Car

A teamster who left his horses and wagon in front of Wayside Lodge, 9926 101 street, for a few minutes Wednesday afternoon, while making some deliveries, returned to find that a driver who saw a car parked beside him. He may have been away longer than usual, or the horses may have been a trifle impatient.

At any rate, the team decided to move on and, mounting the sidewalk, tried to get around the auto. But the pole caught in the left front fender, a trace slipped over the engine hood, and a whipple-tree went taut over the right front fender.

When the drivers of the respective vehicles hurried outside, they found the tangled horses sitting on a damaged right fender, waiting to be loosed. Left fender and hood were damaged somewhat, also.

Registrar Enlists

PORT ARTHUR, March 4.—(CP) —W. A. Elliott, divisional registrar here, has enlisted in the navy, it was announced yesterday, and has been succeeded by E. W. Edwards of Port Arthur.

More U.S. Foods To Be Rationed

WASHINGTON, March 4.—(AP) —Meats, cheese, butter, cooking fats and oils will be rationed in the United States beginning April 1, it was reported today, under current plans of food and rationing agencies.

The sources for this information said the meat ration probably will run about 1¾ pounds per person a week.

As disclosed some weeks ago, cheese will be rationed together with meat because of its usefulness as a meat substitute, while butter, margarine, and cooking fats and oils will be grouped for rationing because of their interchangeability.

The next step on meat is expected to be an agriculture department announcement Friday of a system of licensing all meat slaughterers. Officials hope to be able to curb illegal slaughtering by such a system, under which stiff penalties would be imposed.

Post-War Currency Studied in London

LONDON, March 4—(CP)—Important conferences on post-war currency and other financial problems "of common interest" are proceeding in London, a treasury announcement said yesterday. The statement said one conference has "just been held." It was attended by finance ministers of Allied countries with headquarters in London and representatives of the United States, Russia, China, the Dominions and the Fighting French.

U.S. Football Star Held at Montreal For Girl's Murder

MONTREAL, March 4.—(CP)—A 17-year-old high school football star from Ionia, Mich., resisted police cell here last night awaiting an extradition hearing before returning to the United States to face a murder charge arising from the slaying of 18-year-old Clara B. Johnson, youthful war worker.

The youth, Donald Tenlewe, was taken into custody Tuesday night, and yesterday Chief Detective Armand Brodeur said he had signed a full confession in which he said he had committed the crime in response to a sudden impulse to "do something bad."

The capital of Thailand, Bangkok, once was called "the Venice of the Orient," because its only streets were canals, somewhat like Venice, Italy.

Can You Believe Your Eyes?

They don't have to be able to talk, to tell you when they're in trouble. If they "tear" frequently—or lack sparkle—or behave queerly in the bright light or dark . . . that's their way of saying—"We're not getting enough to eat . . . we're not getting enough Vitamin A."

The sensitivity of your eyes to light . . . and the efficiency of your vision, especially at night . . . depends largely on Vitamin A. When eyes are used in bright light, the "seeing" machinery gradually runs down. If there is enough Vitamin A in your food, this machinery is automatically refueled. But, without Vitamin A, this essential refueling process is not carried out . . . and in extreme cases, "night blindness" is the result.

So, don't wait until your eyes start "shouting for help". Check up on your menus, now. You can't see Vitamin A . . . but you can't see without it. If you want healthy eyes and normal vision . . . make sure you are getting plenty of Vitamin A foods, every day.

Excellent "eye" foods . . . excellent sources of Vitamin A are:

DAIRY PRODUCTS—such as butter, eggs, condensed milk.

"GREEN" VEGETABLES — such as cabbage, head lettuce, green peppers, spinach, broccolli.

MEAT LIVERS—such as beef liver, pork liver, calf's liver

FISH LIVER OILS—such as Halibut liver oil, Cod liver oil.

"YELLOW" VEGETABLES—such as carrots, turnips, squash.

"YELLOW" FRUIT—such as apricots, peaches.

Eight New Bills Are Introduced in Alberta Legislature

Several Existing Acts Will Be Amended Under Proposed Legislation

Eight bills were introduced into the legislature Wednesday afternoon, bringing the sessional total to 19 bills to date. Four of the eight of Wednesday's total were private bills.

A bill to amend the Drainage Districts Act was sponsored by Hon. D. B. MacMillan, minister of agriculture. Previously, under the act, if a district had no debenture indebtedness, a third of the landowners could petition for dissolution of the district, and at subsequent voting, if three-fifths of the ballot was in favor of dissolution, the minister was required to dissolve the district.

The amendment will make granting of a vote conditional upon approval of the Drainage Council, and this approval will be subject to a guarantee of maintenance of the drainage works of the district. The guarantee of maintenance must be provided by a municipality or other responsible body.

AMEND WATER ACT

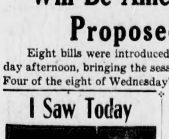

A second bill introduced by Mr. MacMillan is a bill to amend the Water Resources Act. As it now stands, the act authorizes the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council to take over and operate irrigation works, but no machinery is provided for the operation, or the collection of rates. The amendment will provide the governor-in-council with all the powers of a board of trustees.

The amendment also extends liens for water rates and charges, to cover all farm produce. The date for returns by licensees is changed from January 31 to March 15.

Also provided is authority for agreements between the province and the Dominion and other pro-

Getting Around

with Jack DeLong

As has been mentioned before, the war has brought many far-reaching changes to the lives of ordinary people in many parts of the world. Even lands formerly remote and little-heard of, are experiencing war-time surges of activity, that in many cases bewilders the local populations. Newfoundland is a case in point. Converted almost overnight into one gigantic air base, Britain's oldest colony is, figuratively speaking, rubbing its eyes, wondering what it is all about.

A former well known Edmonton resident, who visited here Wednesday, described some of the problems in psychology faced by Canadians engaged in the construction of military projects in Newfoundland.

He is Lt.-Col. H. K. Groff, V.D., officer commanding Halifax mili-

Reject Proposals Hotel Employees

Alexander Young, organizer on behalf of the hotel employees local No. 269, announced Thursday that the Edmonton hotelmen's negotiating committee rejected or modified their proposals Wednesday afternoon that closed the door to negotiations, terminating their taking whole question of wages and working conditions to the government and the public.

"Our committee has warned the hotelman that by their refusal to come to terms, they are forcing us to fully explain to the people the actual conditions we have been putting up with, and a full statement to that effect is being prepared following a partial membership meeting last night," said Mr. Young.

"The hotelmen's committee refused our proposal to apply for a provincial government appointed arbitration board to settle the dispute."

Data Is Sought on Army Deferments

Information concerning the number of employees of the Alberta government and the City of Edmonton, for whom deferments from military service has been sought, with the number of deferments obtained, is sought by the Ex-Servicemen's Rehabilitation committee.

The committee, meeting at the Canadian Legion Memorial Hall Wednesday night, passed a resolution recommending this information be sought through letters to the provincial government and civic administration.

The committee also recommended that the status quo in respect to temporary employment with the city be maintained and that seniority and promotion rights shall accrue to enlisted men.

James Robert Cressey, who committed a theft while a member of the air force, because he wanted to get out of it, had nothing to say when he was sentenced by Magistrate A. I. Millar, K.C., in police court Thursday morning to one year in Fort Saskatchewan jail. Cressey, with four charges of housebreaking against him, was sentenced to one year's imprisonment on each charge, the sentences to run concurrently.

A further remand in the case of a woman whose husband is serving overseas, and an American, charged with contributing to juvenile delinquency was ordered this morning by Magistrate A. I. The Inquiring Reporter

THE QUESTION

What is your opinion of the tremendous burden being carried by this city's street railway system?

THE ANSWERS

JAMES YOUNG, clerk: The figures released Wednesday by Mr. Ferrier give a splendid picture of the load being carried. It is gratifying from the standpoint of receipts, but it seems too bad that essential additions and replacements cannot be made to take care of increased loads.

FRANK WILSON, traveller: It is a musical sound to city hall officials to hear the jingle-jangle of the cash rolling into their coffers. But this jubilation, of necessity must be tempered with the knowledge that the system is bearing a burden for which it is not at present fitted. Let us hope the equipment will stand up under the strain.

GORDON FIELDER, truck driver: The financial returns, and the new peak passenger total appear to be satisfactory. The equipment should get some relief by next month, with better weather, more people walking and more driving to work.

Chimney fire at 14225 103 avenue at 9:47 this morning gave a run to Firehall No. 8. No damage was done.

The case concerned the alleged hitting of Mrs. Paterson's 11-year-old son, about 8:30 p.m. on Feb. 22, at 108 avenue and 95 street. Also called to the witness stand was the woman's younger son, 9 years old. The court stated that boys of tender ages should not be on the streets at night. The incident occurred within a block of where a child fatality took place a few weeks ago.

Fred J. White, selective service official, Winnipeg, and council members of the Chamber of Commerce have agreed to hold two more meetings in an effort to reach a suitable solution to labor difficulty age or shortage problems in Edmonton, Reg. T. Rose, executive secretary of the chamber, has announced. Essential business concerns in Edmonton have been complaining that workmen are leaving their employment in order to get higher wages offered by concerns that do not come under the wage scale.

A strange coincidence occurred at the R.C.A.F. recruiting centre Thursday when two brothers met in the medical room. Neither knew the other was going to join the air force. The meeting was a complete surprise. The brothers were Walter and Arthur McLaren of Beacon Hill, Saskatchewan. Both had lived at Beacon Hill but Walter left home recently to work on the Alaska Highway. After a period in the north country he decided to join the R.C.A.F. Meanwhile, Arthur, who had been at home, got the same idea. Both brothers left for Edmonton at approximately the same time and ran into each other at the recruiting centre. Both are going in for aireview duties.

Co-Operation Post-War Era Is Emphasized

The co-operation which has arisen between business men and the government during the present war must prevail after the war, Francis G. Winspear, C.A., stated at the Rotary club meeting held in the Macdonald hotel Thursday. Topic of his address was "Government Control versus Bureaucracy."

It is difficult to decide just where government control ceases and bureaucracy begins, Mr. Winspear stated and emphasized that "we must avoid a return to the captain of industry" stage which prevailed so unhappily in the 19th century.

There is need of enlightened capitalism but there must also be a sense of social consciousness at the same time.

Speaking of governmental control he stated that unless care was taken the country was running the front would find that instead of a "government of the people, by the people and for the people" they would find a "government of the people, by the government, for the government."

Solution of the problem was greater partnership between business men of the country and the government.

Music at the meeting was provided by the Kiwanis Glee Club under the direction of Ed. McGarvey.

Buildings' Owners Draw Warm Praise

Owners of many public buildings in Edmonton have co-operated wholeheartedly with the city in the campaign to reduce fire hazards, but in one or two cases, owners have held back, City Commissioner W. J. Gibb revealed Thursday.

The commissioner was dealing with the work of the special investigating committee appointed by city council to investigate fire hazards in public buildings. The investigation is being carried on by the fire and building departments.

Several owners have co-operated whole-heartedly in carrying out suggested alterations, but some have not. It is likely that licenses to operate will be withheld in the cases of owners who refuse to co-operate," Mr. Gibb stated.

Street Railway Employee Is Dead

Gus Larson, believed 60 years old (1960) 103 street, was found dead in his home at 5 p.m. Wednesday. He had been dead about two days. The discovery was made by a newspaper carrier who noticed that copies of the paper for the previous two days lay outside where he had been left. The carrier is Bill Sanborn, 10808 107 street.

Sanborn noticed that the padlock on the door was missing from the staple and he opened it. Larson was sitting on one chair, with his feet on another, dead. Death is believed caused by heart failure.

Larson was an employee of the Edmonton Street Railway and lived alone.

No relatives of the dead man live in Edmonton, so far as is known. No inquest will be held. Funeral arrangements are in the hands of Andrews-McLaughlin.

Overheated Stove

An overheated gas stove was responsible for a fire which broke out in a small garage owned by John McNeil, 9941 108 street, at 7:18 p.m. Wednesday, and which did damage to the extent of about $30. A car inside the building was pushed out before it was damaged. Fire Hall No. 2 responded to the call.

Moves Motion

Fred C. Anderson, Social Credit member of the legislature, who in the House Thursday, moved a resolution calling upon the Dominion government to lift the restriction on beer sales.

Low Expresses Disappointment Revenue Losses

Hon. Solon Low, provincial treasurer, Thursday, expressed disappointment that the Dominion government has no apparent intention of recompensing the Canadian provinces for revenue losses due to gasoline restrictions.

In Alberta, these restrictions may mean loss of the sum of $327,000 in the 1944-44 fiscal year, estimates show. The loss is in the provincial secretary's department, and results from a drop in motor-vehicle licenses issued.

Mr. Low's statement follows: "We are very disappointed that Mr. Ilsley provided no compensation in his budget for our losses in revenue from motor license fees. The government here feels that the matter should be further pressed by all the provinces."

Urge Removal Of Beer Sale Restrictions

A motion will be introduced in the legislative assembly Thursday, asking for immediate lifting of restrictions on the sale of beer, it was learned Wednesday. Notice of motion was filed by Fred Anderson, Social Credit, Calgary. The motion will be seconded by N. B. James, Social Credit, Edmonton.

Text of the motion reads:

"Whereas under the Dominion government's Privy Council order, it has been seen fit to drastically cut the sale of beer in Alberta, and whereas this action has created general dissatisfaction among the working people of Alberta, which does not assist the war effort, and whereas the brewing of beer does not interfere with the war effort:

ASK CANCELLATION

"Therefore be it resolved that this assembly is of the opinion that the restrictions on the sale of beer should be immediately cancelled, and that this resolution be forwarded immediately to the Prime Minister of Canada, for his information and implementation.

Hard Work Demands Plenty Energy Food

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX

The hard work "that never hurt anyone" can make us very tired. Physical fatigue calls for physical relaxation. Nervous fatigue calls for some not-too-vigorous exercise as well as the rest period. A hot drink of bouillon about 15 minutes before eating will relax and stimulate you—and prepare your digestive system for the meal to follow.

Hard work demands plenty of food to supply energy, but keep the foods simple and stick to the kinds that are easily digested. A serving of meat and a baked potato, two vegetables—not overcooked—or one vegetable and a salad, wholegrain bread with butter or fortified margarine, and a simple dessert will make a perfect dinner.

If nervous fatigue has not been routed before sitting down to eat, make the meal very light, eating fewer foods but a bit more of each to satisfy your energy needs. For example, substitute a cream soup for the meat, have a larger potato and eat one vegetable. Finish off with some simple cookies and a cup of tea. You will avoid digestive upsets and sleep better, with a consequent lessening of nervous fatigue.

Cream shortening and brown sugar. Add egg and beat well. Combine dry ingredients. Combine molasses and water. Add flour mixture, a small amount at a time and beat after each addition. Pour batter over raisins and apples.

Gingerbread Cobbler is a simple, yet satisfying dessert after a hard day's work.

On Bridge

By WILLIAM E. McKENNEY
America's Card Authority

When the bidding is completed and you are on opening lead, do you just reach for a card? That would be like a surgeon starting an operation without taking into consideration everything that might happen.

Let us look at today's hand from the viewpoint of West, who has the opening lead. North and South slowly and deliberately have arrived at a four-heart contract.

The most that your partner can hold is an ace and possibly one other promoting card. You hope to take two heart tricks. If your partner has an ace, you can take three tricks.

The opponents have bid diamonds. You can't open the doubleton diamond because, if your partner holds the ace of diamonds, he will jump up with it and return a diamond. So make just a normal opening of the ten of spades.

Duplicate—None vul.

South	West	North	East
1♥	Pass	2♦	Pass
2♠	Pass	4♥	First Pass

Opening—♠ 10. 4

Declarer finesses the heart and you win with the queen. Now, hoping that your partner has the ace, lead the eight of diamonds. If your partner is smart, he will refuse to win the first diamond trick. When you get in with the ace of hearts, lead the second diamond. East will win with the ace and return a diamond, which you trump—thus defeating what looked like a perfectly safe four-heart contract.

Happiest Married Wives Wed in Their Thirties

According to Some Recent Researches it Appears That The Most Successful Marriages Are Made By Women Past the Teen-Age

There is a time limit on marriage, as on all other things. Grandma, tottering to the altar on crutches, is nobody's ideal of a blushing bride. But, according to some recent researches that have been made into who is happy though married, it appears that the older a woman is when she commits matrimony, the better chance the marriage has of being a success.

Of course, it has long been a matter of record that teen-age marriages end so often in divorce that they might just as well have a return coupon attached to the marriage license, but it seems that the age angle in marriage goes even deeper than this. At any rate, the investigators into how love's young dream turns out discovered that only one-fourth of brides under 24 found marriage all that it is press-agented to be. But 59 per cent. of the women who married between 25 and 29 found married bliss. And two-thirds of those who married between 30 and 34 were ecstatically happy.

STILL CHANCE

These figures should boom the matrimonial stock of the women who are beginning to wonder if they have been passed over in the distribution of wedding rings. Also, they are an invaluable tip to the man who is thinking of marriage not to look for a bride among the flappers who consider that they are God's gift to any husband and they don't have to make any effort to please him. He should cast his eyes on the ladies sitting uneasily on the Anxious Seat who will regard a good husband as a blessing direct from Heaven, and treat him accordingly.

Of course, in the olden times men married mere girl children on the optimistic theory that if they got them young enough they could bring them up to suit their fancy, but this was just wishful thinking. Nature and the girls' mothers had been busy from birth in forming their characters, tastes and habits. It was pure luck if they turned out to be what their husbands desired. Likewise, the poor husbands had to risk their indigestions and nave dents made in their pocketbooks while their brides were learning how to cook and run a budget.

All of these dangers are, of course, to be avoided by a man marrying a mature woman. She is what he wants it: a wife, or she is not, and he can take her, or leave her, without having to pay alimony the balance of his life for having guessed wrong. He can gauge her mentality and know whether she will be an interesting and amusing life companion, or one who will bore him to death. He can determine whether she would be a helpmate, or a millstone around his neck by the way she manages her own affairs and her attitude towards life in general.

SETTLED WIFE

Moreover, by the time a woman is in her latter twenties she has had her fling and is ready to settle down and be a good wife and mother. Unless she is a hopeless play girl—and his misfortune is on his own head if he marries her—she will never be one of the wives who is always complaining about housekeeping being such a chore and being tied down by babies.

Another reason why the no!-so-young woman is a preferred risk in marriage is because she doesn't expect the impossible in her husband, as the young bride does. She doesn't demand that he be a romantic lover and a good bill-payer at one and the same time. She doesn't consider herself neglected because, when he comes home worn out at night he snoozes behind his paper, instead of entertaining her with scintillating conversation, or taking her out to night clubs. Nor does she dissolve in tears over his taking her for granted.

She knows that it isn't wher a husband says to his wife that counts, it is what he does for her, and that a beef steak can be just as much a love token as an orchid. And that when he takes her for granted it is just because he considers her so much alright that there is no use in mentioning it.

She has known many men. The chances are she has worked for many bosses. She has learned now to rub a man's fur the right way and give the soft answer that turns away wrath and ends an argument. She knows from experience how the work and worry and strain of the business world can fret nerves to fiddle strings, and so she does not stand upon her rights, or her dignity, or her pride with her husband. She is just sorry for him. She is thankful for his love and tenderness and the security he gives her, and that she has a good husband to stand between her and the world.

And so she is happy herself and makes her husband happy, and it is why a woman in her thirties is a good matrimonial bet.

What To Do

3-4

How does one remove small fish bones from the mouth at the table?

Answer—Remove these bones, also pits, seeds, etc., with the thumb and forefinger. It is wrong to spit them into a spoon or fork.

Never hold a napkin before your face to remove anything from your mouth. Simply remove the bone by hand as unobtrusively as possible and place it on the edge of your plate.

Once food has been put in your mouth you may not spit it out—but must swallow it. If you should take a mouthful that is too hot, you may take a drink of water, but under no circumstances remove the food to your fork.

It is erroneous to call any certain day of the week the Sabbath. It is not a term that can be exclusively applied to any one day, and not even the Holy Bible commands any particular day to be regarded as the Sabbath, which merely means "day of rest." The bible commanded that every seventh day should be a Sabbath, or day of rest. It did not specify which day this should be. The Greeks kept it on Monday; the Persians on Tuesday; the Assyrians, Wednesday; the Egyptians, Thursday; the Turks, Friday; the Jews, Saturday; and the early Christians, Sunday. It is the observance of the day, rather than the particular day of the week that matters, for any day can be a Sabbath, but most Sabbaths are not rest days.

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

The easiest thing to set up is a strictly inflexible schedule. Babies fall into regular patterns of conduct with only a little effort on our part.

It does take thought to prevent any routine from becoming so inflexible that the child is completely demoralized when by accident, or intent, it must be altered.

This is one good reason for making minor changes in environment or routines, even when they are unnecessary. Change the position of the child's bed, or allow him to take his nap on some other bed in the house. Change his place at the dining room table. Allow him to stay up later some night, or take him for a visit in the daytime where he must sleep in a strange bed, or allow him to visit a relative unaccompanied by the mother.

All of these small things give the child an education in the "safety" which is present in new as well as in old routines. Unless we do, the child's life goes on so unchanged and so fixed that his present routine and it alone represents safety to him. All alterations in it make the child fearful and timid.

Just because schedules are so valuable, for the very good habits they establish and for the security they do give the child, parents tend to become extreme in their loyalty to them.

They are unaware that they do the child, young or old, a real disservice when they refused to allow him to discover the joy, the excitement and the continued security which are present in change.

Mrs. A.C.F. explains that after a visit to a friend her 14-months-old baby will no longer sleep alone but insists on sleeping with her as she did during the two week's visit. "I've tried letting her cry it out and leaving the room, but she cries so long I am fearful of upsetting her nervous system. What is best for me to do?"

Obviously, you cannot continue to sleep with the child. That is bad for both of you. Since the habit must be re-established, do it gradually. Put her in her bed and sit beside her on your own bed, until she is nearly asleep. Then slip out. Reduce the time you sit by her each evening, until she is able to go to sleep even though you go out when she is still awake. If she wakens in the night resist the temptation to take her into your bed.

She's been used to sleeping alone lots longer than she has been accustomed to sleeping with you. If you know that you must be firm you will be. If you keep putting her into your bed, she'll always be hopeful that you will give in and so her cries will be endless. Some alteration in her naptime might make her sleepier at bedtime.

Our leaflea on "Hours of Sleep", may be had by sending a 4-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper.

KNOW YOUR MINERAL SALTS!

IRON

Everyone knows the value of iron from a defence viewpoint, but few are aware of the vital necessity of this element in building the defence of the body machine. Food iron is used by the body mechanism in the formation of hemoglobin, which is the red coloring matter in the blood cells. Iron is involved in the transportation of oxygen to the remotest cells of the body, it is utilized in blood cell development, and without sufficient food iron, you can never acquire nor maintain "that school girl complexion."

Insufficient food iron may produce anemia, and a host of symptoms follow in its train. Nutritional anemia may be readily overcome by eating plenty of those foods which are rich in iron, and by maintaining the vitamin G intake. Everyone is familiar with the pallid complexion of the anemic individual, who usually has a very low vitality, complains of tiring easily, suffers from headaches, and is lassitude.

My experience has been that taking so-called iron tonics and preparations containing iron, has little effect in remedying nutritional anemia. It seems that nature prefers natural food iron, which is readily obtainable in generous quantities in asparagus, beets, wholewheat bread, broccoli, dates, figs, fish, meat, mushrooms, parsnips, potatoes, prunes, raisins, shrimp, spinach, tomatoes, and whole grain products. If you want quick action, then eat plenty of apricots, green beans, beet greens, clams, egg yolk, liver, oatmeal, molasses, oysters, green peas, soy beans, and turnip tops. All of these are very rich in food iron.

If you have not yet received one of my "VITAMIN CHARTS" then sit down right now and send for one. This chart is a kitchen "must," and it will guide you in marketing for foods with a knowledge beforehand of their vitamin and mineral salt content. In this way, you can prepare vitamin rich meals for the good of the entire family. Tomorrow I am going to tell you something about iodine.

All questions regarding health and diet will be answered. Large stamped, self-addressed envelope must be enclosed. Write on one side of paper only. Letters must not exceed 150 words. Address McCoy Health Service, The McCoy Building, 1151 West 6th Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

Olive Deugau Married Here

The Rev. D. H. Stewart officiated at a double ring wedding ceremony which took place Wednesday evening at Westmount Presbyterian Church, when Olive Mabel, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. V. Deugau of Edmonton, became the bride of Us. Herbert Wallace Ironmonger, R.C.N.V.R., eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Ironmonger of Edmonton. Tall white tapers cast a soft glow over the interior of the church, which was made bright by baskets of spring flowers.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a slipper-length gown of white sheer, styled with a round neckline, long bishop sleeves and embroidered bodice. Her full skirt was fitted from a natural waistline, and her veil of matching tulle was chapel length. Deep red roses and pink carnations formed her bridal bouquet.

Attending her sister as maid-of-honor was Miss Victoria Deugau, and Miss Alma Deugau and Miss Margaret Ironmonger were bridesmaids.

Miss Victoria Deugau chose a floor-length gown of turquoise blue sheer, fashioned with a round neckline, bishop sleeves, natural waistline and full gathered skirt. Her veil of shoulder-length was of matching material, and she carried a arm bouquet of spring flowers.

Both bridesmaids were frocked alike, in pale rose sheer, fashioned on lines similar to that of the maid-of-honor's dress. They wore matching chapel veils, and carried arm bouquets of spring flowers.

Best man was Allan Ironmonger and ushering the guests to their places were Cpl. Wilson Miller, R.C.A.S.C., and Angus Ainsley.

Wedding music was supplied by Mrs. A. L. Miller, and during the signing of the register Mrs. Gordon James sang "Until."

Following the ceremony, a reception to 50 guests was held at the home of the bride's parents, where Mrs. Deugau received her guests in an afternoon ensemble of navy blue, with matching accessories and a shoulder corsage of pale pink carnations. Mrs. Ironmonger, mother of the bridegroom, also received, wearing a frock of navy blue crepe, with Churchill blue felt hat, and matching accessories. Her flowers were pink carnations, en corsage.

The rooms were decorated with baskets of spring flowers, and centring the bride's table was a three-tiered wedding cake, flanked by tall pink tapers, on an ecru lace cloth.

Toast to the bride was proposed by G. W. Wills.

The newlyweds will make their home for the present in Edmonton.

Dancing School To Blitz Fires Is Girl's Jump

By DENISE DALTROFF

LONDON, March 4.—(CP)—Perhaps there is something akin between dancing and the National Fire Service or perhaps there isn't and it was the complete change that attracted Rosemary Elias but there she is anyway—in the N.F.S., charge with combatting enemy-started fires in Britain.

She is Group Officer Rosemary Elias now, instead of being a dancing teacher—and she is official head of a new school for training women officers of the N.F.S.

The group officer is a dark young woman in her late 20s with Grecian features and long hair which she wears in a small "bun" in the nape of her neck. She was brought up in Africa.

"Ever since I was five I have loved dancing," she said. At an early age she made up her mind she was going to make dancing her career so she came to England and learned dancing, learned some more in Paris and then went back to Durban to teach. A few years before the war the Ballet de Monte Carlo went to Africa on a missionary threw up all her other connections and went on tour with the ballet. Dancing seemed fine until war started. Then she wanted to do something more and joined the N.F.S.

SOMETHING LIVELY

Here's a tip for Canadian women who want to take part in war endeavor. Miss Elias says: "I joined the N.F.S. because it was more off the beaten track than any of the other services and there seemed to me an unusual amount of scope for women here."

Once in the fire service there wasn't much time for dancing for the new Group Officer. There was hardly time to think about it, in fact, because she was posted to a depot in London's East End where she received the particular attention of Germany's bombers. She went through all the heavy bombings there. The depot itself was hit several times and some of the personnel were killed.

But Rosemary has done well in the fire service, just as she did in dancing and in the new training school of which she is head she has 50 resident graduates and a resident staff under her control.

Airwomen Are Trusted With Vital Job

By FO. S. L. TILLEY

R.C.A.F. Public Relations Officer

Keeping track of the positions and courses of every aircraft, surface ship or submarine—friendly or enemy—which approaches Canada's rugged North Atlantic coast is a vital war job which is being entrusted to carefully selected members of the Women's Division of the Royal Canadian Air Force.

In secret operations rooms they maintain a constant check on every Allied convoy that plows across the North Atlantic.

They record the movement of every aircraft that flies near the shores of eastern Canada, Newfoundland and Labrador.

And they plot the course of every submarine — friend or enemy — which comes into their operational area.

SECRET WORK

So secret is the work done by these Air Force women in blue that the exact nature of their duties cannot at this time be disclosed. But on Canada's eastern coast these clerks-operationals, as they are called, are today standing 24 hour watch in shifts—their intensified training having made them calm, efficient, conscientious and reliable ready to deal with an emergency that might arise.

They work in specially equipped R.C.A.F. operation rooms, the secrets of which are so carefully guarded that not even other Air Force personnel can gain entry unless they have specific business there and have not only been identified to the R.C.A.F. police guarding the entrances but their visits officially authorized in writing by the Air Staff. And each girl who is permitted to work in these operations room is sworn to secrecy concerning everything she may hear or see while on duty.

FOUR SECTIONS—

The operations rooms in the Eastern Air Command are divided into different sections. In one large room, for example, a visitor can find R.C.A.F. women at their posts around a large circular table on the top of which is a detailed map of the entire North Atlantic coastline. Wearing earphones every minute she is on duty, each girl is directly connected by a secret telephone line to look-out stations scattered all along the East Canadian coast. At a table nearby sit other R.C.A.F. women picking up by telephone the reports of the thousands of civilian members of the Aircraft Detection Corps, an organization originally started by the Air Force solely to provide advance warning of the approach of enemy aircraft. But the functions of the Corps have since been expanded to include the provision of information for the Navy and Army. And keen-eyed fishermen, lumberman, fire-spotters, lawyers, doctors, clergymen businessmen, and housewives located in populated and isolated areas all along these Atlantic shores, on day and night watch, now report immediately by telephone the presence in their respective areas of hostile and unidentified aircraft, submarines and strange navy on ship wreckage, floating vessels and persons, details for the mines and other drifting objects, friendly aircraft and marine craft in distress.

These Aircraft Detection Corps observers today form "a line of eyes" extending from the northernmost tip of Labrador, in every cove and on every headland around Newfoundland, Quebec, and the Maritimes. And their telephonic reports which are always given instantaneous right of way over the telephone lines, are carefully recorded and checked by the R.C.A.F. women working in these secret operations rooms.

Aristocratic in its simplicity is this new spring coat whose whole "eye-appeal" is lent by exquisite line and fine fabric rather than fancy trimming. Of black and white checked woollen, it features a new version of the popular soft shoulder.

Club Activities

McDougall church W.A. held its regular meeting on Tuesday, when it was reported that 34 visits had been made in the month. Mrs. H. Johnston gave a devotional, her subject being "prayer." The war service unit announced a tea to be held May 21, and Circle No. 1 announced a tea to take place March 11. Members met at 2:45 p.m., instead of 3 p.m., to avoid the rush on street cars. Mrs. C. E. Morris was welcomed back after a lengthy illness.

Unprecedented Savings Asked Of Canadians

OTTAWA, March 4. — (CP) — Unprecedented savings called for by Finance Minister Ilsley in his budget speech will involve the investment of almost $250 for every man, woman and child in victory bonds and war savings certificates.

That amount of savings is expected by the minister in addition to the higher deductions from wages and salaries to be made for income tax purposes starting April 1.

$93 PER PERSON

Proceeds of sales of bonds and war savings certificates and stamps last year worked out at about $93 a head of population and to meet the budgetary requirements for next year this will have to be more than doubled.

Worked out on an individual basis for a population of 11,500,000, the government's over-all outlays of $5,500,000,000 for 1943 call for an average of $478 from every man, woman and child, of which just over half is expected to come from the public in the form of loans.

Against this contribution the government will return to the people approximately $10 a head in form of subsidies on commodities to keep prices within the ceiling. The estimated outlay for this purpose during the coming year, as disclosed in detailed estimates of war expenditures tabled in the House of Commons yesterday, is $120,000,000.

"March to Berlin" Proving Success

With final figures yet to be received, the Victory Bond drive "March to Berlin" stamp drive in Alberta was an outstanding success.

Alberta had a quota of $42,000, and to date the returns show that $60,117.50 worth of stamps were sold during the month of February and about the same amount.

The success of this drive would not have been a reality, had it not been for the salesmen working on behalf of the wholesale houses in Alberta. Every retailer can tell you how thoroughly their need for stamps was looked after by these salesmen, a spokesman said.

The committee expects that it will have the final figures on this drive about March 12 and they are confident that they will be at least $5,000 more than this present figure.

Development Work To Be Accelerated

OTTAWA, March 4.—(CP)—Intensified search for strategic minerals and oil in Canada is indicated in allocations to the mines and resources department in war appropriation estimates for 1943-44 tabled in the House of Commons yesterday by Finance Minister Ilsley.

Provision is made for a $5,000,000 expenditure on the Prince Rupert - Terrace - Cedarvale highway in British Columbia which will link Prince Rupert at the coast with existing highway systems in the interior.

Items for exploration and development work total $1,350,000. Last year's appropriation for this purpose, including construction of a laboratory, was $1,032,000.

Included in the appropriations are: Development work to be undertaken by Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. on Alberta tar sands, $100,000; investigation of oil sources in Canada, $500,000; special exploration and development work on strategic minerals, $500,000; and assistance to provincial governments in construction of transportation facilities into strategic mineral and oil properties, $200,000.

Women Assisting Manpower Problem

Solution to the manpower problem is in the hands of the women of Canada in the opinion of Squadron Leader W. Paul Graham, commanding officer at No. 3 R.C.A.F. recruiting centre.

The officer made this observation while referring to the continual tug-of-war between the armed services, agriculture and industry.

The real solution lies in the training of women. By enlisting at this time they can go a long way toward cleaning up the whole problem. Every woman in the air force relieves a man for fighting duties and women are exceeding all expectations in the way they handle their various jobs in the forces.

The officer said that if 10,000 women were to join the air force tomorrow there would be 10,000 more pilots, navigators and bombers ready to rain destruction on the enemy.

He appealed to women to come forward and solve the manpower problem.

Spellman Arrives At Seville, Spain

SEVILLE, Spain, March 4.—(AP)—Archbishop Francis J. Spellman of New York arrived at Seville aboard an Italian air liner from Rome yesterday.

A Rome dispatch broadcast by the Berlin radio said received by The Associated Press said Archbishop Spellman, who arrived in Rome Feb. 26 on a mission which caused widespread speculation, had a private farewell audience with Pope Pius XII Tuesday night which was so strictly private that even the Pope's chamberlain had not been notified.

Axis broadcasts earlier said that the Archbishop would go to Algiers by way of Barcelona and later to Britain.

Man Found Dead In Calgary Room Believed Suicide

CALGARY, March 4.—(CP)—Believed to have taken his own life, Alberta Leroy Siegfried, 28, of Mound, was found lying dead on the floor of his bedroom Tuesday morning, and a .22 calibre rifle was lying at the foot of the bed, R.C.M.P. at Calgary reported yesterday.

The young man left a note explaining his action, blaming it on personal difficulties. He had a bullet wound in the head.

Coroner Dr. C. C. Hartman was called, and after looking into the circumstances said an inquest would be unnecessary.

8th Army Patrols Join With Yank Scouting Forces

LONDON, March 4.—(CP)—The Reuters correspondent in North Africa, David Brown, cabled today that forward scouting patrols of the British 8th Army had been reported to have joined with American reconnaissance forces pushing down towards Gafsa in Tunisia.

The Berlin radio as heard by the Daily Mail broadcast a report which could be interpreted as substantiation of the Reuters dispatch. It said:

"In addition to three British infantry divisions and two tank brigades facing the Axis army, there is a small fighting group in the desert west of Rommel's defence zone."

Sick Bandleader's Condition Is Grave

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., March 4.—(AP)—Bandleader Ben Bernie was reported by his brother-manager yesterday to be in an increasingly grave condition from pleurisy and cardiac complications. Herman Bernie said his brother is constantly under an oxygen tent and is conscious only at intervals. His wife and son, Air Cadet Jason Bernie, are at his bedside.

House Group Starts Probe Public Business

A full investigation of government treasury branches and government printing contracts will be made by the public accounts committee of the legislature, it was decided at the opening meeting of the committee Thursday morning, in the legislative buildings.

It was decided to investigate the matter of printing contracts first.

The first witnesses to be called by the committee will be A. Shnitka, King's Printer, and G. Clash, purchasing agent for the government.

Next meeting of the committee which is under chairmanship of Dr. J. L. Robinson, Social Credit, Medicine Hat, will be Tuesday next at 10 a.m. Thirty-six members of the legislature comprise the committee.

J. C. Mahaffy, Independent house leader, in opening discussions at Thursday's meeting, said it was at his request that the committee be called. He said public account was the most important of all the legislature's committees, and it was this committee's duty to scrutinize the public accounts tabled in the legislature, and report its findings to the house.

Mr. Mahaffy said the government had declined to call the committee.

"That is an untrue charge", objected Hon. Lucien Maynard, K.C., minister of telephones and labor, and it should be struck from the records of the committee". The minister said the committee had been called from time to time.

Mr. Mahaffy said that it was the first time in his memory that the committee had been convened.

Here, Hon. E. C. Manning, provincial secretary and minister of trade and industry, stated the cabinet was not responsible, as Mr. Mahaffy said for the committee not having convened before. Mr. Manning said this remark was out of order.

Dr. Robinson ruled the statement be struck from the records of the committee.

WANT TO KNOW

"We want to know what happens to the money voted each year by the assembly, in order that the treasury branch system may be subsidized. We want to know if the development and general good of the province is being benefited and improved by this system," Mr. Mahaffy said.

Mr. Mahaffy added that it would seem the more business transacted by the treasury branches, the greater the deficit.

"Has the government got a wildcat by the tail, and is afraid to let go?" he asked.

He said the committee should also know whether this scheme was a part of the government's interim Social Credit program.

The opposition leader then made formal request for the calling of witnesses for hearings. He named L. D. Byrne, Social Credit adviser to the government; A. K. Olive, superintendent of the treasury branches; C. K. Huckvale, provincial auditor, and J. F. Percival, deputy provincial treasurer.

Mr. Mahaffy said there were other matters for investigation also, including the question of getting right down to business. He suggested a possibility of daily meetings.

The chairman pointed out that daily meetings were impossible, due to the fact that other legislative committees had morning sessions.

LOW SEEKS DATA

Hon. Solon Low, provincial treasurer, asked Mr. Mahaffy for information on the matters to be investigated, so pertinent information could be gathered by those concerned.

Mr. Mahaffy said the opposition wished to question the King's Printer, A. Shnitka, in respect to printing contracts let by the government.

Hon. W. A. Fallow, minister of public works, said that in respect of printing contracts, I presume the committee can go as far back as it wishes, and get the collection of other governments, for purposes of comparison".

A discussion then arose on which matter should be investigated first.

A standing vote of 16 to 15 decided the printing contracts should be reviewed first.

MAYNARD SPEAKS

At this point Mr. Maynard made a statement setting out his attitude to certain aspects of the treasury branch investigation.

"I have no objection to the investigation if it does good or bad made by the treasury branch, but I feel that the business affairs of private individuals should not be questioned by this committee," he said.

"I feel it is most improper that the private affairs of any business in the province should be investigated by this committee." Mr. Maynard added. "I have none of this committee's business."

The minister said he would raise strenuous objection to any such investigation of private business.

Mr. Davison said he was not interested in the private or personal business, but there were certain underlying principles which must be investigated.

A later motion to the committee added to the list of witnesses to be called the name of A. A. Cash, government purchasing agent. He will be called with Mr. Shnitka.

Gandhi, 73-year-old Indian Nationalist leader, ended his fast yesterday, having subsisted for three weeks on water mixed with lime juice.

DENIES FAST ALTERED

A bulletin from the four doctors still in attendance said Gandhi slept well last night and was cheerful today. He had orange juice, honey and water during the day they said.

Dr. Roy dismissed contentions that the time juice which Gandhi took was sufficient to alter the status of the fast, though the Mahatma at his feeblest admittedly had 70 ounces within 24 hours. As Gandhi rallied, the daily amount was reduced.

Dr. Roy bade good bye to Gandhi yesterday at the Aga Khan's palace, where Gandhi remained under detention for alleged complicity in the bloodshed and sabotage marking Nationalist anti-British riots last summer.

British and Americans Share in Feat

Nazi U-Boat Crew Taken Prisoners in North Africa

Nosing out from its haystack camouflage a Russian tank heads into action on the Veronezh front where Soviet forces have driven to vicinity of Kursh and Kharkov.

The entire crew of a German U-boat, captured after beach ing their sub, is lined up under the watchful eyes of their American guards before they are sent off to an internmen t camp. The submarine was badly damaged by British depth charges off the North African Coas t. The commander is shown at right.

With a song in her heart for her boy friend in the Navy and a button from his peajacket adorning her bracelet, songstress Peggy Lee sets new nautical mode.

Calling All Japs

"Surrender or be killed" was the ultimatum served on Guadalcanal Japs via loudspeakers in the jungle. Lieut.-Col. Fred Munson, left, broadcast to the enemy in Japanese pointing out the many advantages of surrendering. Some Japs surrendered, the rest were killed.

Dish Is It

Dishtowel babushkas are the fad with Seattle high school girls who autograph each other's for that extra touch.

Captured Yanks—Says Dr. Goebbels

Action in Tunisia

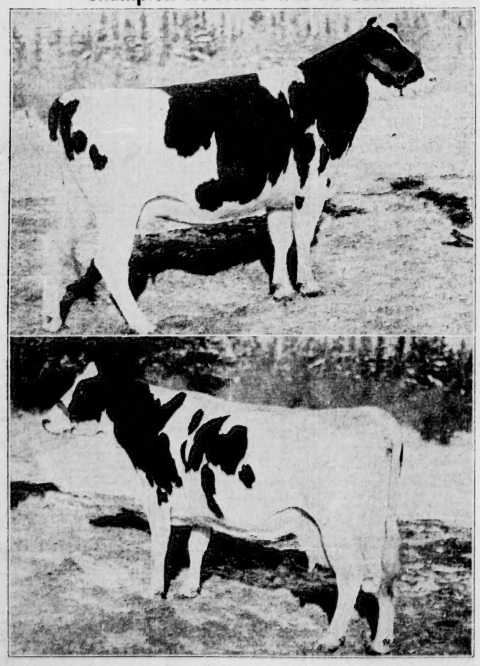

Nazis in a surprise offensive against our forces in Tunisia provided photographers with this series of action pictures. At top, British tanks move across a field toward a German position in the Bou Arada area. Then down out of the sky comes a twin-motored Nazi dive bomber, dropping its bombs in a great explosion, bottom. One British tank was damaged, one enemy bomber was shot down.

Champion Holsteins Will Be Sold

A show herd well known over the continent for the past 30 years is the Holstein herd from the Canadian Pacific Railway display farm at Strathmore, Alta., which will be offered for sale at auction at Markham, Ontario, April 12 and 13. Animals which have consistently won championships at Canadian and American shows will be among the 250 Holsteins offered by the railway for sale to Canadian and American breeders. In above photo, Strathmore Pearl Vrouka (at top), and Strathmore Ko-ba Zozo DeKol pose as typical specimens of the famous C.P.R. herd which is being dispersed because the railway company feels that the original purpose for which its demonstration herds were set up, namely improvement of livestock breeding in western Canada, has been fulfilled. The railway is also planning to dispose of some 125 head of prize-winning Aberdeen Angus cattle—which demonstrate the beef type as against the milk-producing Holsteins—at another Canadian auction to be held probably in Calgary, some time after the Holstein auction.

American and German Armies Now Locked in Their First Battle of War

First great American-German battle of World War II has taken place in Tunisia where U.S. troops, along with British and French forces, fight to drive the Axis out of Africa. The pictures show American war-planes—the P-40 Warhawk and P-38 twin-tailed Lightning—which help gain Allied air control over Tunisia; American tanks, which may soon see action against Nazis; German soldiers and a tank like those that drove U.S. forces back on the central front; and battle-bound French soldiers with American troops.

Aussies Take No Chances

The Terrible Eye

CHAPTER XI

"FORTY thou . . ." Mr. Channing was choking. "Have you lost your mind, Clarissa? In the French Revolution they guillotined women like you."

"I happen to know," said Mrs. Channing, a gold mine of statistics, "that you paid $42,500 for that nasty horse of yours. That Black Moonlight. But you sit here depriving your own wife of a mere . . ."

"Oh, Lord!" Mr. Channing banged the desk. "All right, Clarissa. Get the damned thing."

"Thank you, lovey," said Mrs. Channing, with a little sigh. "I'll phone Brown, Moon & Snow's right away and have them send it out. So I can wear it at your party Saturday night. You're a lamb, lovey. And now you can get back to your old sales curves and things."

"Gr-rr," said Mr. Channing. The door closed upon Mrs. Channing, and $40,000.

With tragullity reigning once more, Mr. Channing attempted to resume work. But his train of thought had been interrupted and it was no go. Mr. Channing, however, not one to waste time, improved the moment by being audibly sorry for himself.

"Meath," he said, leaning back fn his chair, "I am a much-harass~ man. Confidentially, Meath, in spite of these—ah—appurtenances"—he swept a hand to indicate Wildover—"I lead a dog's life."

"Yes, sir," said Meath promptly. In addition to being a superb secretary, Meath was also a competent yes-woman.

"It's a fact." Mr. Channing said broodingly. "My existence is a sorry one. Consider, Meath! I have a wife who thinks of nothing but frittering away my hard-earned money. I have a wayward and insolent daughter. I am also afflicted with a brother-in-law who lies awake nights thinking out schemes by which to cheat me."

"You poor man," said Meath.

"There are times, Meath," Mr. Channing was thoroughly enjoying himself, "when for me life becomes nothing but a vista of blackness and frustration."

Meath congitated a moment. "Mr. Channing," she said at last, "may I say something—er—personal?"

"Certainly," said Mr. Channing affably.

"Well, then," Meath said, "it is my opinion that this horse race is preying on your mind."

Ever since Bucephalus had made strictly equine sounds outside the window, Meath had been wondering how to bring up the subject of the race. The reason for her interest was financial. When the contest had first been projected, Meath had strung along with her employer. And, rashly, she had entered into a transaction with one Corby, the Channing butler. Such was her conviction that she had placed Corby, a man not averse to a sporting flutter, on the good end of four to one odds. But as time wore on, the feet of Miss Meath had grown cold. And her vague doubts were not dispersed by leering hints made by Corby to the effect that a great upset might be in the making. Corby was conducting a war of nerves.

Mr. Channing was regarding Meath in surprise. "That," he said "is ridiculous. The race is the only thing that isn't worrying me. Why, Black Moonlight could read 'Gone With the Wind' around the track and still beat that farm horse of Calvin's."

"Very likely. But anything can happen, you know." Gently Meath planted the seed of doubt.

"Preposterous," said Mr. Channing. "Black Moonlight will leave that nag at the post."

"But if he doesn't Mr. Channing?" Meath said slowly.

"In that remote event there would be nothing to do but pay up."

Ever so carefully Meath slipped him the needle. "Mr. Channing," she said, "that is merely your conscious speaking. It is your subconscious that really worries you."

"So! What do you know about my sub-conscious?"

"I may know more than you think, sir," said Meath glibly. "One of my hobbies is psychology. And my—my experience tells me that while your conscious does not consider the possibly of defeat and its aftermath, your subconscious does. Particularly the aftermath."

"Is that so? Well, what about this hypothetical aftermath?"

"You mentioned a moment ago," went on Meath, "that you fed a dog's life. Well, your sub-cohscious is trying to remind you that if, through any unforeseen occurence, your horse should lose, Mr. Calvin Meggs would make your life a hell on earth."

"Ha!" said Mr. Channing, impressed in spite of himself. "You've got something there."

"Well," said Meath, dragging up the heavy guns, "if by chance Black Moonlight shouldn't win, your position would become intolerable."

Mr. Channing drummed thoughtfully on the desk. "Meath," he said, "you seem to have thought this thing through very well. But I don't see how we can remove the outside chance that Calvin's superannuated billygoat might come through."

* * *

It was the opening for which Meath had been sparring.

"May I speak freely, Mr. Channing?" she said.

"Go as far as you like," said Mr. Channing, as one who hands over the keys to the city.

Meath went on. She went to town. By the time she had finished her employer was gazing at her in open-mouthed admiration.

"Meath," he said, in an awed voice, "this is superb. Remind me to raise your salary."

"Yes, sir," said Meath modestly.

"Your masterly—ah—campaign," continued Mr. Channing, "would seem to place my wager with Calvin in the category of a sure thing."

"Exactly" said Meath. And added, under her breath: "And my bet with Corby."

"Well then," cried Mr. Channing, a doer not a dreamer, "why don't we start the ball rolling?"

"Why not, indeed, sir?" Meath said.

"No time like the present, eh, Meath?"

"No, sir," said Meath, who was a yes-woman and no-woman combined.

Mr. Channing arose. For a moment he paced his den, chin upon chest. But presently he halted beside Meath's chair and patted her shoulder.

"I've considered the scheme from every angle," he said. "And it's sound. It puts it in the bag, as the fella says, doesn't it, Meath?"

"In the bag, sir," echoed Meath, discreetly dropping here eyes.

An hour later Miss Meath left Wildover, on foot. She proceeded along the improved road that ran past the estate for about a mile. At that point a dirt road, hardly more than a wagon track, ran off to the right. Meath turned into the dirt road.

A short distance up this bypath was a dilapidated house. Time and the elements had colored it a dingy gray. The front porch sagged in a discouraged manner and the windows were shuttered. Obviously the place was abandoned. But Meath turned into the unkempt grounds without hesitation.

She went around to the rear noting, in passing, an automobile of the genus jalopppy parked well out of sight from the dirt road. Then she mounted the tumble-down back stoop and rapped smartly three times on the kitchen door.

Instantly the door opened a crack. A rheumy eye appeared at the crack.

"Hija, Goitie," said a voice like a file scraping over corrugated iron. "Welcome to me country er-state." The door opened wide.

City Member of House Clashes With Speaker During Budget Address

Sessional thunderbolts were loosed in the legislature Wednesday afternoon for the first time in the 1943 sitting, when Hugh John Macdonald, Liberal, Edmonton, refused to complete his budget address, following a Speaker's ruling that he was out of order.

Climax of the dispute occurred when Mr. Macdonald referred to "the courts," after Mr. Speaker Peter Dawson had ruled that such references had nothing to do with the budget itself.

Starting a sentence, "The courts do not make the laws," he was called to order by the Speaker.

"My contention," Mr. Macdonald said, "is this matter of the courts has to do with the budget, in that this legislature will be called upon to vote certain money for administration of courts."

REFUSES TO CONTINUE

"If, Mr. Speaker, you decide I cannot make any reference to courts of law, then I have nothing more to say." Mr. Macdonald then sat down.

Mr. Speaker said he had warned Mr. Macdonald before, and that he was out of order.

The debate was then adjourned by Hon. Lucien Maynard, K.C., minister of municipal affairs, and Premier Aberhart adjourned the sitting until Thursday.

Mr. Macdonald started to quote from a letter, a part of which Premier Aberhart quoted in his address in the debate on the Speech from the Throne, when Hon. N. E. Tanner, minister of lands and mines, rose on a point of order. Mr. Tanner said the speaker was referring to something connected with the Throne Speech debate, which had nothing to do with the budget debate.

"I warned the members to confine themselves to the budget proper," Mr. Speaker said. He then warned Mr. Macdonald that any further outside references would mean the member would have to stay in his seat.

CALLED TO ORDER

Just a few moments later, Mr. Macdonald was again called to order, and refused to continue his speech.

In his address, he urged the government to pass legislation giving power to enforce blackout regulations in the province. He added the government should see to it that coal should be stored in cities, towns, and villages, wherever possible and that the coal industry produces every ton possible.

Tax exemptions on soldiers' homes should be made available to all men in uniform regardless of when ownership was required, Mr. Macdonald said.

He said four soldiers' seats should be established in the legislature, two for Northern Alberta and two for the South.

"The problems which of necessity will arise on demobilization, and generally the viewpoint of the soldiers themselves, can best be expressed by soldiers who have seen active service. The government should lose no time in making sure of representation by soldiers," said Mr. Macdonald.

PROPOSES HIGHWAY

Another suggestion put forward by the Edmonton member was for a highway from the United States border to Dawson Creek, through Edmonton. He said the government should supervise construction of tourist cabins along the Alaska highway, from Edmonton to Dawson Creek, for after-the-war tourist trade.

Now is the time to prepare for the tourist trade Mr. Macdonald said, and not when they are thrust upon us. The tourist industry could be made one of the most important in Alberta, he added.

Payments on Alberta's Debt Are Demanded

Lessening of the load carried by the public, or the payment of some of Alberta's debt was demanded by J. H. Walker, Independent, Warner, in the legislature Wednesday, when he spoke in the budget debate.

The Warner member also suggested the government should consider reducing the license fees charged motorists of the province. On the basis of 120 gallons of gasoline per year allowed by the Dominion oil controller, he said the average miles travelled this year will be 2,400, making the license cost alone a little above one cent per mile.

SHOULD LESSEN LOAD

"With all the prosperity we have in the province," Mr. Walker said, "there is no question we will again show an over-all surplus for the year ending March 31, 1943." We should lessen the load on the public or pay off some of the debt, he said.

He said that from March, 1935, to March, 1942, there was an increase in the province's population of only 21,393 people, and for the year ending March 31, 1942, payments to civil servants for wages, travelling expenses and miscellaneous payments was $1,078,706 more than was paid at the time the government took office.

When the government sells $100 of liquor, it makes a profit of $47.83, Mr. Walker told the house.

His figures were questioned by C. E. Gerhart, Social Credit, Acadia-Coronation, but Mr. Gerhart was ruled out of order by the Speaker.

Mr. Walker said he deplored the fact the budget showed the government was not afraid to spend money so badly needed for necessary expenditures, on treasury branches and the Social Credit board. Further, he said, there is no let-up in spending money.

The speaker made a plea for establishing synthetic rubber plants in the province, to produce rubber from wheat, before some other industry takes the wheat for other products. He also asked for construction of another sugar factory to use the output of southern Alberta's fast-growing sugar beet industry.

Co-operation with the Dominion government was asked, for building dams, reservoirs and canals for irrigation systems in the south of the province.

Eight New Acts Are Introduced In Legislature

vincial authorities for the establishment of a board with jurisdiction to regulate and control the use of inter-provincial boundary waters.

Under the amendments, the minister is authorized to enter into agreements with the Dominion government, for construction by the Dominion of conservation projects under the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Act. The minister is given power of expropriation when necessary, of right-of-way for such projects.

A bill amending the Alberta Hail Insurance Act was introduced by Hon. Solon Low, provincial treasurer. It provides establishment of a superannuation fund for the hail insurance board. Nucleus of the fund will be a sum not in excess of eight per cent of the aggregate of board officers' and employees' salaries.

PROVIDES NEW POLICY

This amendment also provides for a new kind of policy to be issued, under which policy-holders are limited to sharing in premiums received on that class of policy, less expenses.

Another new section to be put in the Hail Insurance act provides that if payment of claims is not made by November 1, the board shall on that date make a payment not exceeding 50 per cent of claims, with the balance being paid, on a pro rata basis, the following March 1.

Hon. Lucien Maynard, K.C. minister of municipal affairs, introduced a bill amending the Improvement Districts act.

The bill will cover omissions of personal property and business in provisions relating to levying of taxes. It provides a new tax roll, whereby different rates of taxes are combined into one, for the purpose of estimating total taxes.

New provisions for penalties in the bill cut them from two to one per year, the date of imposition being changed from July 1 to April 1, and the rate changed to 6 per cent, or less, as the minister may fix.

FOUR PRIVATE BILLS

The four private bills introduced were one amending the charter of Calgary and Southwestern Railway company, sponsored by Fred Anderson, Social Credit, Calgary; amendments to the City of Calgary charter, introduced by Independent Leader J. C. Mahaffy, K.C. Calgary; amendments to the City of Edmonton charter, introduced by N. B. Garson Approves Of New Tax Plan

WINNIPEG, March 4.—(CP)—Premier Stuart S. Garson of Manitoba said yesterday that advantages of the federal government's new "pay-as-you-go" plan for collecting income taxes "greatly outweigh its disadvantages."

"It is extremely gratifying to see that the federal government has adopted the plan," he said.

"I think that as time goes on, we will find that the application of this plan will relieve thousands of citizens from efficiency-destroying worry about overhanging debts for income taxes to be paid at some later date."

He said further that "if we find it necessary, as I think we shall, to continue to employ taxation as an instrument in the development of post-war financial policy, that instrument can be employed with greater precision under the pay-as-you-go method."

Iron Discipline in Battle, Great Powers of Endurance Characterize Red Army Man

This is one of a series of nine articles on Russia by Henry C. Cassidy, chief of the Associated Press Bureau in Moscow, home in the United States on leave. Tomorrow he will discuss wartime life in Russia.—EDITOR.

By HENRY C. CASSIDY

NEW YORK, March 4.—(AP)—Adolf Hitler, in a moment of exasperation, once called the Russians "swamp animals". From questions I have been asked since my return from Moscow, I gather many Americans think of them as big, rough, bear-like creatures.

Actually, the Soviet soldier often resembles an average American or Canadian boy.

The winter victories of the Red army have added to his self-confidence, and new regulations have spruced up his appearance.

STARTLING CHANGE

The placing of epaulettes on the Red army uniform constituted a startling change. These were once the ornaments of the Czarist soldiers, and therefore, to the Soviet people, the insignia of enemies of their state. Their restitution was taken by Moscow observers to indicate a return of the Soviet Union to traditions of old Russia.

Another sign of this rooting of modern Russia in its past was seen in the creation of numerous decorations and orders, including those named after the Czarist Marshals Suvorov and Kutuzov.

There were rumors in Moscow, just as I left, that another change was coming: that the word "Tovarish," or "Comrade," used for a quarter-century since the revolution, would be dropped from the Red army vocabulary, in addressing superiors, and that "Gosrodin," the pre-revolutionary word for "Mister", would be substituted.

REGULAR FORMULA

The Red army man follows a regular formula in speaking to his officers. He salutes briskly, announces his rank and name, and says: "I am listening to you, comrade commander." As the officer speaks, instead of "yes, sir," he says again, "I listen to you."

If addressed in a group, the Soviet soldier acknowledges orders by saying in unison: "we serve the Soviet Union."

The base pay for a private is 10 rubles a month, about $2 at the official exchange rate. This is doubled if he serves in a guards unit, so designated for particularly effective service. The pay rises rapidly with the rank.

Women are common at the Russian front. They wear side-arms and march in their own formations but do not go into action as riflemen. Some serve in combat as specialists, such as snipers or machine-gunners, but most of them are nurses, clerks or waitresses.

STUBBORN FIGHTERS

If ordered to attack, the Red Army man hunches his way through snow, slush, dirt or dust, crawling on the ground, then rising to charge, until his objective is captured or he is killed. If ordered to resist, he stands his ground stubbornly.

This does not mean he is superhuman. There have been cases in the Red Army, as in any army, of men in the ranks wavering under fire. The penalty, in such a case, is immediate death. Several instances have been made known of men who faltered or fled, and were promptly shot by their superior officers.

This iron discipline is one of the outstanding characteristics of the Red army man. Another which has impressed observers is his endurance. He can fight his way forward, through terrible climatic conditions, for day after day, and still summon physical strength for a further effort. He stays in the front line, without rifle, for months at a stretch.

His favorite method of combat is in-fighting with the bayonet. He carries the long, triangular-bladed "shtik" constantly on his rifle, which is balanced for accurate fire with the steel in place.

WEAKEST POINT

His weakest point, compared to some other troops, probably is in his handling of modern automatic weapons. Army orders stress periodically that he must study, learn how to handle his weapon perfectly.

Revolt Seen In India If Gandhi Died

Should Mahatma Gandhi die as a martyr, through fasting, there would be danger of a revolution in India, says Dr. C. S. de Radwan, Polish lecturer and psychologist, who has arrived in the city for a series of speaking engagements.

"There is a great misunderstanding of Gandhi," Dr. Radwan says. "He was a student of Yogi, and as such, learned the secret of fasting."

Dr. Radwan added that the Indian leader could fast for 21 days, with the same effects experienced by ordinary persons fasting for three days.

REASONS FOR HATRED

Native Indians, he said, do not hate the British any more than they hate other members of the white races. It is their color, not their nationality that counts. The reason Indians hate the white people, Dr. Radwan said, is that the white race is superior.

Dr. Radwan was in Warsaw when the Germans attacked the city in 1939. He and his wife escaped to Rumania, and later to India.

He founded the Radwan Institute of Psychology in London in 1933, and has a branch institute in Toronto.

He comes to Canada from Singapore, having left there just prior to the Japanese invasion of Malaya. In Singapore, Dr. Radwan lectured at a university for two years on applied psychology.

He will speak at a joint meeting of the Lions and Cosmopolitan clubs at the Macdonald hotel Thursday, his subject being "War and Nerves".

PURPOSE OF LECTURES

Purpose of his lectures ,Dr. Radwan states, is to draw attention to "the limitation of our psychic powers". He says huge amounts of mental energy are being wasted in fear and worry, and this kills efficiency.

Scientific mental effort, he adds, will greatly aid the war program of the country.

Sulfa Drugs Help Child to Recover From Spider Bite

CALGARY, March 4.—(CP)—A treatment of sulfa drugs given a little girl suffering from a mysterious malady in the Galt hospital at Lethbridge was credited yesterday with checking the effects of a Black Widow spider's bite and putting the girl back on the road to recovery.

The patient is Elfrieda Brown, 11-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Brown of Vauxhall, and the deadly spider, lurking near the warmth of a kitchen fireplace, is believed to have bitten the child about a week ago when she was warming herself in the morning.

Cancelled Leaves Are Now Resumed

OTTAWA, March 4. — (CP) — Leave for troops was cancelled during February at the request of the transit controller, but now have been resumed, Defence Minister Ralston told the House of Commons yesterday, answering a question from T. L. Church (Prog.-Con., Toronto Broadview). He said the reasons given for the transit controller's request were transportation difficulties due to bad weather and a heavy volume of freight traffic

Manning Urged To Relinquish Post on Board

Hon. E. C. Manning, minister of trade and industry, was in an "unenviable" position, because he is also chairman of the Alberta regional war labor board, Dr. J. L. Robinson, Social Credit, Medicine Hat, told the legislature Wednesday afternoon. Dr. Robinson, who was speaking in the budget debate, suggested Mr. Manning resign his position on the war labor board.

The national war labor board, of which Hon. Humphrey Mitchell was chairman, was made up of four representatives of industry, and four from labor, Dr. Robinson told the house. Corresponding body in Alberta is the regional war labor board, of which Mr. Manning is chairman.

LABOR ADMINISTRATOR

Mr. Manning is in charge of administration of labor legislation, for the provincial government.

"Confusion worse confounded" was Dr. Robinson's description of the situation between employers and employees, as a result of confusing policies of the national war labor board.

"The workers don't know where they're at, and employers don't know where they're at," Dr. Robinson said. "It is the method of bureaucracy run riot."

He pointed out that a new board had been established at Ottawa, with a judge as chairman, in place of Mr. Mitchell.

Dr. Robinson said he feared the new arrangement would not be to the advantage of labor.

NOT QUARRELING

Stating he was not quarreling with the good work the regional board had been able to do, the member said that as head of the regional board, Mr. Manning was in charge of a group administering "dominion regulations which were often in conflict with provincial labor policies. It was essential to have co-operation in wartime, Dr. Robinson admitted.

He said the minister of trade and industry would be well advised to follow the lead of Mr. Mitchell's withdrawal from the national labor board.

"I would like to have the minister state his intentions in the house," Dr. Robinson declared. "Does he approve of the type of regulations he has to administer," he asked.

Controlling of basic wage rates was a duty of both the national and regional boards, the member added.

Earlier in his speech, Dr. Robinson discussed a vote in estimates tabled in the house, for the board of industrial relations. The estimates showed the salary of Clayton Adams, chairman of the board, was paid only partly by the province.

BALANCE BY OTTAWA

The balance of Mr. Adams' salary, he said, was paid by the Dominion government, as the chairman of the board of industrial relations was also executive officer of the regional war labor board.

It was not a good policy, Dr. Robinson said, to have the salary of an official paid by two governments. He added the salary of a provincial employee should be paid by the province.

For the first time, the contractors ran up against a problem that had them really baffled. They found in the Newfoundland people something absolutely new. A people who were not utterly dazzled by the offer of sky-high wages. Later when the "invading" contractor labor hailed the Newfoundlander he was able to secure his wholehearted co-operation for the necessary work. But it was necessary to first give full consideration to the personal working problems he Newfoundlanders the former Edmonton doctor stated.

"It was found that the native Newfoundlander considers more things than money," the officer said.

Lt.-Col. Groff thinks the Newfoundlander is really tops. Every serviceman has a standing invitation from every home in the country. All the British and British servicemen were royally welcomed and the same welcome went to the Americans when they arrived, he said.

The doctor said the arrival of the Americans in Newfoundland was something to really marvel at.

"They brought everything with them, bulldozers, tractors, trucks, and were at work in 24 hours. I never believed that so much stuff could be taken out of a single ship as I saw unloaded here," the former Edmontonian said.
